Roosevelt Backs Subsidies Idea To Hold Down Costs of Food

Has No Intention of Creating "Czar" with Over-all Powers

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt backed today the idea of subsidies to hold down food costs of consumers, and suggested that if congressional critics of such payments know of a better way to combat inflation they should come out with it. He told a press conference he did not know of a better way.

Mr. Roosevelt made clear, too, that he has no intention of creating a "Czar" with over-all powers over food matters—a proposal taken to the White House first by a Senate group yesterday, and again today by a bi-partisan committee of House members.

Sharp Struggle Forecast

On both these issues, there was accumulating evidence that a sharp struggle was developing in Congress. Some legislators already are talking of pressing legislation to establish a central food administration, and for months the members have been taking sides on the question of whether it is advisable to subsidize the cost of living.

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown pushed the latter issue to the fore today with the declaration that it is impossible, without subsidies, to carry out congressional mandates concerning prices.

Mr. Roosevelt gave over virtually his entire press conference to a discussion of inflation and food prices which developed these major points:

1. He expects the Office of Price Administration (OPA) to go on as it has been. He replied with a flat no when asked if it is to be "split up."

2. Food Administrator Chester C. Davis, so far as the president knows is perfectly satisfied with his present authority.

3. There have been delays, Mr. Roosevelt acknowledged, in handling food and other matters as a result of divisions of authority, but he said he expected the new Office of War Mobilization (OWM) to coordinate the work of all and eliminate delays.

Would Accept Better Way

4. While strongly supporting the idea of subsidies, Mr. Roosevelt said he thought he would not send Congress a message on the subject because the legislators already knew that was one way to buck inflation. If they had a better way, he said, they could come out with it.

In discussing subsidies, the president spoke of $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 as the possible cost, but said these were just figures he had

German Thrusts Are Beaten Back By Soviet Army

Russian War Bulletin Reports 400 Nazis Killed in Orel Region

LONDON, Wednesday, June 16 (AP)—Four new German counterattacks in the reactivated Orel region were hurled back yesterday. It was announced today by the Russians, who declared that enemy troops ceased their attempts to retake lost territory at sundown after two unsuccessful days.

One of the German thrusts, carried out under the cover of a smoke screen, penetrated to the outskirts of a populated place northwest of Mtsensk which was captured recently by the Russians before being beaten off, the Soviet midnight communiqué announced.

The war bulletin, recorded here by the Soviet Monitor, said the Russians killed about 400 Germans, destroyed or damaged a number of tanks and captured some material in staving off the sharp German drives.

The day's unsuccessful attempts followed similar counterattacks by the Germans Monday night northeast of Mtsensk, which the Russians said were turned back with heavy losses.

Earlier, the Germans claimed that the principal fighting was in the Kuban area of the Caucasus. They told of new Soviet drives which they said were unsuccessful.

Meanwhile, Soviet airmen raided German rear positions, attacking railway stations, trains and stores. The communiqué said huge fires

RAF Heaps Fresh Destruction on The Ruhr Valley

Steel and Communications Center of Oberhausen Is Hard Hit

By RICE YAHNER

LONDON, June 15. (AP)—Sweeping along invasion paths by night and day, the RAF heaped fresh destruction on the bomb-smashed Ruhr valley last night, especially the steel and communications center of Oberhausen, to keep the June air offensive tearing at Germany's war sinews.

While great bombers ground down upon steel and coal targets in Oberhausen on the Rhine-Herne canal for the fourth consecutive night raid on Germany, lighter planes ranged far over France and the Low countries, attacking railway targets and barges near the Rhine, Dixmude in Belgium, and Roubaix and Abbeville in France.

Waves of Fighters Participate

Almost before they were back, cannon-armed day fighters of the new tactical air force went roaring out to slam scores of targets along the western rim of Hitler's defenses.

Waves of RAF fighters and light bombers shuttled back and forth across the channel in the direction of Calais today, presumably aiming at enemy airfields, water and rail transportation, following up the night time sorties of Mosquitoes, Whirlwinds, Bostons, Typhoons, Beaufighters and Mustangs. They are the kind of planes that will ride ahead and over Allied troops when they strike the continent.

The Germans acknowledged "considerable destruction" in residential quarters and "losses among the civilian population, especially in Oberhausen," in the night attacks, and asserted twenty of the raiders were shot down.

The British reported loss of eighteen planes in the night sweeps, and said the intruder patrols downed two Nazi craft.

Oberhausen is a strategic city in German communications, standing at the junction of railways to Duisburg, Dortmund, and Hamm. It lies three miles west of Essen, and has a population of 110,000.

Spiritfires making a dawn raid over France pounded upon two flights of fifteen Focke-Wulf's, downing three of them.

British Lose Two Planes

An air ministry communiqué tonight said fighters and fighter bombers lashed out at shipping off Cherbourg peninsula and railway targets near Dieppe. Two British planes were missing.

The Germans jabbed back at London Monday night, killing seven persons and wrecking a few houses. The raiders gave the capital two alerts, but few planes pierced London's anti-aircraft defenses.

In recent raids the Germans have

New England Senator Asails Elmer Davis for Attack on Press

WASHINGTON, June 15. (AP)—Senator Bridges (R-NH) said today that Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information (O.W.I.), is trying "to silence the nation's press to cover sins of mal-administration on the part of the New Deal in the war effort."

In a speech to the Senate, Bridges replied to Davis's remarks yesterday that Washington news coverage was inadequate. Davis, addressing a convention of the American Newspaper Guild in Boston, contended that Washington newsmen were missing the biggest story of the war—America's production record—and were playing up the bickering between government agencies.

"The men and women who report the activities of Congress, who write the news of our nation, of wartime Washington, of the war in general, are to be commended, not criticized, for their outstanding effort, their masterful accomplishment of a difficult task," said Bridges.

"Perhaps," he added, Davis's "real objection is that they have uncovered some news about Washington which does not look too well outside of Washington."

"Unwarranted" Attack

"Nowhere can be found a more loyal group of American citizens than the men and women who today report the news of this nation for the great wire services and the many newspapers both large and small.

"By his unwarranted attack upon the press, by his attack upon these newspapermen and women, Davis has incapacitated himself to further hold the office to which he was appointed by President Roosevelt."

"Now after repeated bungling, after being compelled to admit certain material issued by his office has been improper politically, Mr. Davis flounders in seeking to smear Washington correspondents and the press in general. He seeks to make this country believe the unbiased news reports from Washington of faulty administration on the home front, of OPA, of foodstuffs, of rationing are so much bunk."

Coal Producers, UMW Throw Out Portal Pay Pact

Central Pennsylvania Association Awaits WLB Decision

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association and the United Mine Workers today threw out their agreement on $1.30 a day as portal-to-portal pay. A War Labor Board decision, possibly tomorrow, was awaited as the next development on the issue.

Charles O'Neill, president of the producers' association, announced the collapse of efforts to reduce to writing the oral agreement of $1.30 as compensation for the miners' underground travel time. He said the union's position would mean nearly the postponement of the issue for one year, whereas the operators wanted a permanent settlement now.

UMW President John L. Lewis would not comment. The UMW Policy committee will meet tomorrow.

O'Neill's group, which withdrew from the Appalachian joint wage conference last week, thus was back on the same footing as the other operators. He advised the War Labor Board that the Central Pennsylvania producers await its decision.

Litigable Issue

O'Neill told WLB chairman William H. Davis that the producers took the position the payment of $1.30 a day for travel time should release them from all claims for that travel time prior to April 1; that is, the miners, as a union and individually, would not demand, or sue for, retroactive pay. He said the UMW refused to agree.

Some War Labor Board members are understood to take the view that the question whether travel time is working time under the Fair Labor Standards Act is a litigable issue which can be settled only by the courts, unless the parties agree to a full out-of-court settlement that does not violate the wage stabilization program.

O'Neill wrote Davis:

"The Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers' Association has failed in its efforts to reduce to writing the oral agreement with the United Mine Workers of America."

"We failed to reach an accord on an indemnification or protection clause relating to the portal-to-portal issue prior to April 1, 1943, which we have always contended was fully covered by the contract. We were in accord on all of the provisions necessary to complete the agreement, until the United Mine Workers refused to accept beyond April 1, 1944, the release and settlement as to alleged claims and demands for portal-to-portal or travel time prior to April 1, 1943."

No Temporary Settlement

"Our proposition was that the agreement on the portal-to-portal issue should be a continuing agreement to remain in full force and effect, notwithstanding that the wage agreement itself might expire by lapse of time. In other words the failure came about a matter of providing a permanent settlement of the issue for alleged claims prior to April 1, 1943, as against merely a postponement of the issue."

"The association decided it could not accept such a temporary settlement of this issue, and the negotiations have collapsed."

"Therefore, the Central Pennsylvania

NON-ESSENTIAL CITIZENS BEING EVACUATED FROM GERMAN CITIES

Reich Falling Victim to General Condition of War Nerves

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

BERN, Switzerland, June 15 (AP)—All persons who are not required for the war effort are being evacuated from German cities subjected to the heavy new Allied air attacks, according to German newspapers reaching here, and at least on the basis of Nazi-controlled press reports up to tonight, Germany is falling victim to a serious and general condition of war nerves.

The Allied air forces, which have caused 600 air alarms and carried out 180 heavy aerial attacks, have caused widespread evacuation of civilians to safe rural areas. German newspapers, by their admonitions and appeals, were in agreement on important points:

That Allied air attacks, especially in Western and Northwestern Germany have caused heavy damage both in homes and in the cities in general;

That many evacuees are leaving

SICILY TAKES BRUNT OF AIR INVASION PUSH

WITH THE OUTLYING ISLANDS of Pantelleria, Lampedusa and Linosa safely in the Allied bag, the much more formidable Italian stronghold of Sicily now is getting the principal attention in that war theater. As shown on the map, fighter planes based on Pantelleria can meet bombers from Africa to protect them over Sicily. One of the latest points blasted is the Catania airfield where the main runway was torn up, hangars were set afire and a number of enemy aircraft destroyed on the ground. Allied raids also destroyed 150 Axis planes on the ground in a sweep over air fields in western Sicily.

Congress Will Consider Big New Tax Bill

Levies Will Not Take Effect until Next Year, Leaders Assert

By FRANCIS M. LE MAY

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—Governmental machinery began rolling today toward greater wartime taxes, but Democratic congressional leaders gave assurances that no additional burden would be placed this year upon income taxpayers, either individuals or corporations.

The leaders, in a conference with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, took a stand against retroactive taxes, and some legislators expressed doubt that Congress would be able to raise all the $16,000,000,000 additional revenues requested by President Roosevelt.

Emerging from the conference, Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the tax-writing Ways and Means committee announced that a new tax law probably would be written this fall.

Significantly, however, he added that the major provisions of such legislation would not become effective before Jan. 1.

Under President Roosevelt's recommendation that $16,000,000,000 additional be raised in the next twelve months through new taxes and compulsory savings, federal revenues in the fiscal year beginning July 1 would be lifted to approximately $50,000,000,000.

The conference in Morgenthau's office was attended by Doughton, Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Finance committee, Senator Byrd (D-Va.), and ranking Democratic members of the House Ways and Means committee, Reps. Cooper of Tennessee and Disney of Oklahoma.

Doughton said:

"It was agreed that every reasonable effort would be made to enact a tax bill this year, the main provisions of which would not be effective before January 1, 1944."

"Immediate discussion will take place with the Ways and Means committee with a view to having hearings about two weeks before Congress reconvenes, if a recess is taken."

Americans Shoot Down Nazi Planes At 6 to 1 Ratio

WASHINGTON, June 15. (AP)—American four-engine bombers over Europe have been shooting German planes out of the skies at a ratio of nearly six to one, a War department summary disclosed today.

It showed that in eighteen heavy bombardment missions—all daylight, high altitude precision bombing forays—four-engine bombers made approximately 1,600 sorties against German targets and shot down 571 German planes, probably destroyed 187, and damaged 231 in aerial combat.

American losses amounted to 106 planes up to and including the attack of the past weekend, for which only preliminary figures are available.

C.I.O. President Asks No-Strike Bill Be Vetoed

Murray Contends Measure Would "Actually Encourage Stoppages"

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—CIO President Philip Murray, asking President Roosevelt to veto the Connally-Smith anti-strike bill, contended today it would "actually encourage stoppages and interruptions of work."

Murray's appeal was made in an open letter to the chief executive. Before it was made public, the president sidetracked a direct reply to a press conference question as to whether he would sign the bill. He said he was not sure it had reached the White House but if it had it had gone to the usual departments for recommendations.

Weakens WLB, Claim

Secretary of Labor Perkins said she had received a routine request from the Bureau of the Budget for comment. She declined to say whether she had recommended vetoing the bill but remarked, "American labor made a pledge to the president and that's that. I think they will keep their word." She referred to the no-strike pledge. Murray said the bill's prohibition in political contributions by labor unions was "very openly aimed at weakening the democratic structure of our country by preventing the participation of the common people in our political life."

The CIO president said the bill would weaken, not strengthen, the War Labor Board which would receive the power of subpoena.

The requirement for a secret ballot of employees on questions of striking he said, implies that strikes are permissible, and would open the way for industrial spies and provocateurs

C Book Revoked For Car Used by Governor's Wife

Panel Rules She Improperly Used Occupational Gasoline Rations

BALTIMORE, June 15. (AP)—A special panel of inquiry ruled tonight that Mrs. Herbert R. O'Connor, wife of Maryland's governor, had improperly used occupational gasoline rations on a trip to South Carolina in a state-owned automobile and revoked both the C book for that vehicle and a second one obtained "through error" for her personal automobile.

The panel, headed by Judge Emory H. Niles, chairman of the Baltimore War Price and Rationing Board, also suspended for a three-month period the A ration card of Mrs. O'Connor's personal automobile.

The panel deliberated for several hours after the hour-and-a-half-long hearing which Mrs. O'Connor did not attend. She was represented by Hugh Allen Meade, assistant state attorney general who acted, however, in an unofficial capacity as counsel for the wife of Maryland's chief executive.

"The text of the decision of the four-man panel follows:

"At the hearing held before the undersigned this day, constituting a panel of War Price and Rationing No. 233.1, in Baltimore City, it appeared that Mrs. Herbert R. O'Connor, wife of Governor Herbert R. O'Connor, made a trip from Baltimore to Charleston, S. C., and return beginning March 27, 1943 and ending shortly thereafter."

"She traveled by boat from Baltimore to Norfolk, Va., and in a state-owned automobile bearing Maryland license 30-000 from Norfolk to Charleston and return, a round trip distance of approximately 844 miles."

"The gasoline used for the trip was obtained upon an application dated February 1, 1943, filed on behalf of the State of Maryland Executive Department, stating that the occupation of the principal user of the vehicle was 'state government, commander-in-chief of the military and police' and that the purpose for which the vehicle was to be used was 'in official business incident to the duties incumbent to his position as the chief administrator of the State of Maryland.'"

"The application was certified by State Mileage Conservation Administrator, Captain Andrew T. Conner and upon this application the board issued a C book expiring May 1, 1943 for 1,500 miles per month."

"Since the car was an official car no A book was, or is, outstanding in connection with it."

"No question arises as to the needs of the executive department in carrying on the business of the state either as to the amount of mileage required or as to the number of cars needed by the governor for his household."

War's Spotlight Shifts Suddenly As Allies Close Syrian Frontier

German Reports Say Allied Invasion Army Is Massing in Syria; New Red Offensive Is Expected

By LEWIS HAWKINS

LONDON, June 15 (AP)—The spotlight of the Mediterranean war shifted dramatically today from the center to the East, where the Allies were reported semi-officially from Ankara to have closed Syria's frontier with Turkey.

London sources left the report in the air without confirmation, denial, or comment, but unofficial observers said the first implication was that the British Ninth and Tenth armies and United States troops that have been training quietly and building up strength for months in Syria, Palestine, Iraq and Iran might be on the move.

The Daily Herald quoted German reports that the Allies were massing an "invasion army" in Syria, and that all British garrisons had been reinforced.

Heightens Invasion Anxiety

Thus was added new fuel to the fires of Axis invasion anxiety. During the day the Italians reported an Allied fleet massing near Sicily, the Germans warned of a possible new Russian offensive, and the Germans were said to have reshuffled their top generals in commands along the edges of the "European Fortress."

Closing of the Turkish-Syrian frontier, nearly 350 miles long, might be intended to cover up moves by Allied troops in the border area where conceivably they could be massing for sea thrusts towards Crete, the Dodecanese, or Greece itself.

(A British broadcasting Corporation report heard by NBC said the frontier was closed "to check leakage of information from Syria and Palestine to Germany through Turkey.")

Semi-official sources in Ankara said the frontier was closed at 6 p. m. tonight, and a German radio broadcast said the action was taken at 6 this morning.

Tribute Is Paid To Crew of Sub Sunk by Japanese

Men "Accepted Destruction Rather than Surrender," Navy Reports

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The eight officers and ninety-four men aboard the United States submarine Argonaut "accepted destruction rather than surrender."

This was reported by the navy today in a tribute to their courage and self-sacrifice as symbolic of the dangerous submarine service. The end of the Argonaut, as overdue and presumed to be lost, was announced Feb. 21.

The commanding officer and the entire ship's company have been awarded identical letters of commendation by Rear Admiral Charles A. Lockwood, commander submarine force, Pacific fleet, for a successful attack against an enemy destroyer on her last war patrol.

An army reconnaissance plane reported the action in which the undersea craft, largest of her kind in the United States navy, intercepted a Japanese convoy not far from Rabaul, New Britain, torpedoed an escort vessel, and was depth-charged, shelled and destroyed in a severe counter-attack.

Forced To Break Surface

The commanding officer of the Argonaut was Lieutenant Commander John R. Pierce, 37, whose wife, Mrs. Mary T. Pierce, lives in Brooklyn.

His citation and those to members of his crew stated:

Leaders of U. S. Forces in China Return to Posts

Situation Is Far More Hopeful than That of Two Months Ago

By GLENN BABB

General Stilwell and Chennault, who lead the small American forces supporting China's valiant fight to remain an effective member of the United Nations, are back at their posts of command.

They have returned to a situation far more hopeful than that of two months ago, when they flew to Washington to report on the perils and opportunities of the China theater.

When the two generals left China it was generally agreed that there were three fronts in the global conflict on which it was possible for the enemy to inflict a catastrophic defeat on the Allies. These were Atlantic, Russia and China, with the menace greatest in China.

Dangers Are Not Over

It would be foolish to assume that these dangers are over. Hitler's U-boat packs still may come up with new weapons or new tactics that will deny the Atlantic to the Allies. The possibilities of a German victory in Russia this summer or a knockout of China by Japan can not be ruled out.

But it is entirely possible that the Allies are over the hump in all three theaters. The evidence grows that we are defeating the submarine. May was the best month since the United States entered the war. Meager returns for the first half of June give rise to the hope that despite the long days of the summer sailing season, presumably the best hunting season for the U-boat packs, June may be even better than May.

As for Russia and China, the continued inactivity of the Axis armies there presents the biggest current question mark of the war. Why has not Hitler launched his "supreme gambler's throw," his third attempt to destroy the Red army? Why have not the Japanese done something effective about knocking China out of the war?

Answer May Come Soon

The answer may come soon in a form that will mean a rude awakening from the visions of early victory now held by such a large portion of the Allied public. The answer may be that both Germany and Japan are preparing something really big, either separately or together. If together, it might take the form of that long discussed Japanese attack on Siberia synchronized with Hitler's drive from the West.

In Hitler's case it may be that he already feels that the Western Allies' attack is too imminent to permit him to commit the greater part of his resources to the Russian offensive. As for Japan, it is possible that her forces already are stretched too thin to hold the outposts of the great empire she has overrun to permit of the concentration of the necessary striking power for an offensive in any single theater.

However, Allied military authorities admit they have not found a satisfactory answer to the puzzle of Japan's apparent lack of offensive intent. They feel that she still disposes of formidable striking forces that may appear suddenly where least expected. The next few weeks should solve this riddle.

Golden Is Named Coordinator of WLB and WMC

WASHINGTON, June 15. (AP)—Co-ordination of manpower and production was centered tonight in Clinton S. Golden, assistant to CIO President Philip Murray, by simultaneous action of the War Production Board (WPB) and the War Manpower Commission (WMC).

Golden was named by WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson and WMC Chairman Paul V. McNutt with tying in their programs so that production schedules may be geared to manpower supply and manpower policies geared to production needs.

Golden, who will work full time on leave of absence from his union post, was appointed to a vice chairmanship in each of the agencies. In manpower he will be on a $10 per diem basis; in WPB his compensation has not been fixed.

Nelson named Joseph D. Keenan, former secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor (AFL), as a second WPB vice chairman, thus meeting a long-standing request of organized labor for representation "at the top" of WPB for both major labor groups.

McNutt said Golden's appointment was approved by the AFL as well as by the CIO, and the Golden and Keenan appointments in WPB were approved at session of that agency's Management-Labor Council made up of the heads of the AFL, CIO, National Association of Manufacturers and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Earlier Nelson had announced the resignation of Wendell Lund of Detroit, former director of the Michigan State Unemployment Compensation Commission, as director of WPB's Labor Production division. Keenan will take over that division with the title of vice chairman for labor production. Golden was designated vice chairman for manpower liaison.

LIBERATORS DROP 23 TONS OF BOMBS ON NEW BRITAIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Wednesday, June 16. (AP)—Nineteen Liberators dropped twenty-three tons of bombs yesterday on Rabaul, New Britain, the high command announced in the noon communique.

It was the fourth heavy raid since last Thursday on the Japanese air stronghold on the Northern tip of New Britain.

The Japanese air force, in a renewed showing of force, sent fifty-seven planes in raids on the Bena Bena area ninety miles northwest of Lae, New Guinea and nine other planes attacked Dobodura.

Yesterday's bomb weight on Rabaul's airdromes increased to 135 tons the total dropped in the four raids. Forty tons were dropped in last Thursday's raid, forty-two Friday and thirty Sunday.

In yesterday's raid, seven large fires were started and heavy explosions were touched off on Rabaul's Lakunai airdrome.

The raids represented a continued stepping up of bombing blows by the air force of Lieut. General George C. Kenney which since last May 27 also have dumped 100 tons of bombs in three raids on Lae, New Guinea, and over seventy tons in four raids on Wewak.

The Japanese raids on the Bena Bena area focused attention on a new Allied sector. Although well inland it is above the Huon peninsula, beyond two vital Japanese bases, Lae and Salamaua, toward which Australian and American ground forces have been infiltrating from the Papuan peninsula.

The communique said the Japanese raiders included twenty-seven bombers escorted by thirty fighters. It made no mention of the damage done at Bena Bena but said slight damage was caused by the nine raiders of Dobodura.

"Little Navy" Is Being Prepared To Lead Invasion

Light Landing Units Will Drive First Wedge into Atlantic Wall

By JAMES M. LONG

SOMEWHERE OFF ENGLAND'S COAST, Wednesday, June 16. (AP)—The first wave of an Allied invasion probably will be carried on to the European coast by men with cocoa-smeared faces who will splash in through the surf from flat-bottomed flounders which can lay down their own smoke screens, drum out their own supporting fire and ferry men and tanks ashore through water barely inches deep.

At bases along this coast, which is still studied with the defense works of Britain's past hour of peril, this new "little navy" assault force landing team is being coached to clockwork perfection. It will be ready for the job of driving the first wedge into the Nazi fortifications of Hitler's Atlantic wall.

A series of combined operations and demonstrations of landing craft and their personnel—although not undertaken in sequence on a single beachhead or in a dress rehearsal for invasion—nonetheless serves to illustrate the technique of the assault which will probably touch off the land battle of Europe.

Scene Reconstructed

This, reconstructed as to sequence, is the scene which may be enacted soon in grim reality on a terrific scale.

The sea is a greenish grey and the tide laps in on the pebbled beach. Off where the camouflage paint blends into the misty horizon, the big ships of the regular fleet cover the inland heights with turret guns and the sky with anti-aircraft batteries.

Roaring down out of the overhead haze slant heavily armed typhoons of the aerial support, their wings almost awash as their guns come to bear on the beach.

In past the destroyer line, in staggered file astern, streak little landing craft—landing support boats, spilling the waves with their flat hulls and cascading up's of silver spray from their blunt bows.

Some are LCS boats—landing craft support. They are little destroyers, sleek, swift, armed and armored. As they race into range their mortars bark hoarsely, and thin trails of white mark the high curving arc of fire as they make smoke to screen their landing.

Skirting the tiny destroyers come the first light-landing units, bringing in men, tanks and Bren gun carriers.

Tank Boats Arrive

In very light LCPS—personnel landing craft—veteran Royal Marines crouch out of sight. Well out from the shore they have oiled their faces and rubbed in the cocoa, which cures reddish brown.

Five hundred yards off-shore they slide into position—belly-flat with their heads down along the narrow spray-drenched decks. The Bren gunners are in ready position.

Hardly checking their speed, the boats grind in to the gravel, and in that instant the men plunge wading-deep into the surf and deploy at a dead run.

With them come the LCPS—landing craft tank boats—built to hold light tanks and Bren gun carriers, whose cleated tractor grips bring them out snorting and ready for a fight.

These are only the light craft—the first wave. Backing them up are the bigger landing craft for troops in force and large numbers of tanks.

President Sends Note to Kalinin

Forthcoming Battles Will Strengthen Ties, Message Says

LONDON, Wednesday, June 16. (AP)—Forthcoming decisive battles will further strengthen the United States-Soviet collaboration, President Roosevelt told President Michael Kalinin in a message, made public today by Moscow, on the occasion of the anniversary of the United States-Russian mutual aid pact.

The message, broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet Monitor, answered a note by Kalinin on June 11 promising Russian collaboration in the peace.

"I deeply appreciate your kind message on the occasion of the anniversary of the signing of the agreement between our two countries on the principles of mutual assistance in waging war against aggression," said the text as reported by the Soviet Monitor, translated into Russian and back into English. "This agreement has proved during the past year to be an effective measure for co-ordinating our mutual struggle against our common enemy. I am confident that the friendship and collaboration between our countries, reflected in this agreement, will be still further strengthened in forthcoming decisive battles and will receive a fuller expression in the post-war period for the cause of establishment and preservation, in accordance with all freedom loving peoples, of a just and enduring peace."

Baltimore Faces Charge of Murder

BALTIMORE, June 15. (AP)—A formal charge of murder was lodged today against Ronald W. Harris, 35, of Baltimore, in the death of City Patrolman William J. Woodcock, who died early Sunday after he was beaten while attempting to make an arrest.

Harris also was charged in warrants sought by State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells with assaulting and attempting to kill Salvatore Costa, 16, and for assaulting and beating John J. Mulgrew.

Assistant State's Attorney Thomas N. Biddison and Wells assisted Police Capt. Joseph H. Itzel in investigation of the case.

Three other men were held under $500 bond as state witnesses, after a hearing before Magistrate Elmer J. Hammer. They were Wesley Doxon, Lewis E. Crites and Amos H. Morey.

19 AIRMEN KILLED AS TWO LARGE ARMY BOMBERS COLLIDE

CARRIZOZO, N. M., June 15. (AP)—Two large army bombers collided and crashed today in the White mountains of South Central New Mexico, killing nineteen airmen. Sheriff A. K. Stover reported.

One crewman parachuted safely. The scene of the crash, about 500 yards from a road, was within seven miles of the resort town of Ruidoso in the Lincoln National Forest.

Stover, who left immediately for the scene received the report from an eye-witness, William Ferguson, a rancher of this section, who with his wife and daughter were visiting near where the planes crashed early today. One of the planes burst into flames.

Army ground parties were on the scene but official announcement concerning the accident was withheld pending notification of next of kin of the casualties.

"The question to be decided is whether the use of gasoline issued to the executive department of the state for official business incident to the duties of the governor was properly used in the trip from Baltimore to Charleston by Mrs. O'Connor.

"In our opinion, the use by Mrs. O'Connor of gasoline issued for official state purposes in her trip to Charleston was improper and constituted a violation of the regulations which prescribe that ration stamps shall be used only for the purpose for which they are issued.

"Whatever may be said as to the use of an official car to discharge the household duties required of the mistress of the government house, we feel that this trip to Charleston, S. C., whether for reasons of health or otherwise cannot be considered as a part of such official or semi-official duties.

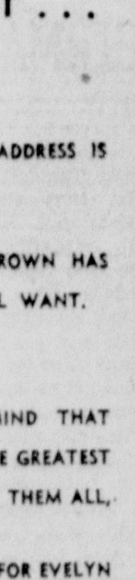

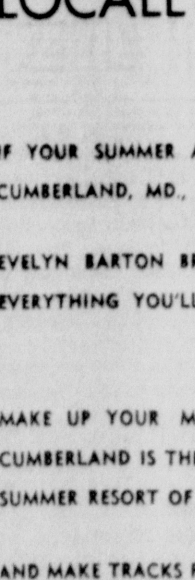

"Counsel for Mrs. O'Connor has presented to the panel a certificate from an eminent physician indicating that at the time in question Mrs. O'Connor was in ill health and required rest, quiet and relief from her household duties.

"We feel the force of these circumstances, but we are of the opinion that public transportation was adequate and no medical reason has been shown why the use of the automobile entailing the expenditure of both gasoline and tires was imperative."

Special Training Unit To Educate Soldiers Set Up

Approximately 450 Men Will Take Course Monthly at Fort Meade

BALTIMORE, June 15. (AP)—An army special training unit for soldiers possessing limited educational qualifications precluding immediate military training was activated today at the Fort George G. Meade reception center.

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding general of the Third Service Command, announced approximately 450 men would enter the unit each month for a course of about six weeks' duration. A second unit will be established at the New Cumberland, Pa., reception center later this month.

Institution of the units was in compliance with an army service forces directive, General Reckord said. With about 750 men to be enrolled monthly at the New Cumberland camp, approximately 1,200 men will be sent every four to six weeks to the two posts.

Relieve Other Units

"The purpose of these special training units at reception center level," General Reckord declared, "is to relieve organizations, unit training centers and replacement training centers from expending regular training effort on recruits who cannot absorb such training.

"Therefore, any man processed through a reception center who is unable to read and write English at a fourth grade level, who is unable to speak or understand simple English, or who is classified in the lowest army educational grouping, will be assigned to one of the units before being given a permanent assignment with some branch of the army ground, air or service forces."

Trainees initially placed in special training units directly from reception centers will not be dispatched to their normal assignments until they have developed the required proficiency to begin a regular course of military training.

Men will be assigned to the centers through screening tests conducted at induction stations.

"The standard of proficiency resulting from the instruction in these special training units," General Reckord said, "will be such that successful completion of the course will adequately prepare the individual to proceed with the regular unit or replacement center training program."

"Those who do not evidence aptness for military training sufficient to justify further effort will be given discharges from the army. In no event will a trainee be retained for the special training longer than three months."

Col. Malcolm W. Force, formerly stationed at Meade headquarters, has been named temporary commanding officer of the Fort Meade unit. Col. George H. Cherrington will command temporarily the New Cumberland unit.

General Reckord said Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, army service forces chief, had ordered inauguration of one or more of the special training units in each of the country's nine service commands.

taken from the newspapers. Assuming they were correct, he said, that would be only one and one half to two per cent on a $100,000,000,000 cost of the war.

(Presumably he referred to annual costs this year's war spending has been officially estimated at $106,000,000,000.)

The House delegation visiting the White House today talked with the president, James K. Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization, and Fred M. Vinson, director of Economic Stabilization.

Fulmer Wants Action

Chairman Fulmer (D-SC) of the House Agriculture committee, who headed the group, made it plain that they received no encouragement, he said he got the impression that "they want to continue with this experimenting," and added:

"If they want to continue this darned experiment then we'll just have to take some action."

However, he said he had promised Byrnes he would consult him before taking any action.

Rep. Hope (R-Kan.), ranking minority member of the Agriculture committee, said the White House callers would wait a while and see whether President Roosevelt would carry out their suggestions by executive order.

At present responsibility for food production rests with Food Administrator Chester C. Davis while he and the Office of Price Administration (OPA) have joint responsibility for fixing farm prices, with the economic stabilization director deciding disputes between them.

Byrnes is understood to contend that pressure for higher prices can be resisted better under the present set-up than if one man had complete authority over all phases of food production and prices.

Brown's indirect reply to congressional critics of subsidies came in an address to a conference of representatives from the wholesale and retail food trade.

In the Price Control acts, he said, Congress laid down three principles: that prices to farmers must not be less than parity, that prices must be stabilized at the Sept. 15, 1942, level, and that fair margins be provided for processors and middle men.

"With these principles," he continued, "we knew the program could not work out without the employment of government funds, and very wisely it was provided in the act that subsidies could be paid."

"Think of these restrictions again, add them up and you can't come out without subsidies."

Brown said the OPA's food price controls must work or the nation would suffer a major defeat on the home front. Expressing conviction that they could be made to work, he said OPA had vastly greater powers and greater "know-how" than it possessed a year ago, and proposed to use them.

The subsidy battle spread to the Senate floor today with charges that the rollback in retail meat prices is "completely demoralizing the market."

Senator Wherry (R-Neb.) declared producers are being forced to sell cattle at what he called "terrific losses."

Senator Reed (R-Kas.) asserted that the price drop was "part of a determined program to wreck the meat producers in this country."

Sicily Is Again Heavily Bombed By Allied Airmen

Two-ton Blockbusters Are Dropped upon Messina; Great Fires Started

By DANIEL DE LUCE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, June 15. (AP)—The strategic Allied air force, the great club in the Allied armory, has again beaten heavily at Sicily, centering the fire of two-ton blockbuster bombs upon Messina, the ferry approach to Southern Italy proper. Allied headquarters disclosed today.

This attack was driven in by RAF Wellington bombers over Sunday night and into yesterday morning. Messina, already one of the most bombed targets in the whole of the Mediterranean, was left alight with great fires; its railway yards and harbor area were hit repeatedly with ton upon ton of exploding steel.

In these and other night operations by the Northwest Africa air forces no allied plane was lost, it was announced in General Eisenhower's communique.

At the same time, official bulletins from Malta and Cairo told of new offensive sweeps from both of these Allied bases in the three-sided campaign to break down the last of the island approaches to the Italian mainland.

Malta-based fighters and intruders swept over both Sicily and Southern Italy, bombing war factories and turning bomb and cannon fire upon Italian railway communication.

A single challenging German fighter plane was shot down.

From Cairo, long range RAF fighters went out again over the Aegean sea, setting fire to an enemy schooner.

The day brought also an announcement that further study of reconnaissance photographs had established that the Flying Fortress attack of June 5 on the Italian naval base of La Spezia had scored a direct hit on the forward deck of a 35,000-ton Italian battleship of the Littorio class.

Officers Are Named By Church Group

FREDERICK, Md., June 15. (AP)—The Rev. John L. Barnhart, Baltimore, was elected president of the Potomac Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed church, embracing Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, at its annual meeting here today.

Today's opening session of the two-day meeting was given over almost entirely to the reading of reports of various committees. The Rev. E. F. Hoffmeier, Walkersville, Md., was elected vice president, while the Rev. N. L. Horn and Charles P. Kimpel, Jr., both of Baltimore, were voted secretary and treasurer, respectively.

A Leroy McCordell, of Frederick, was elected a member of Synodical council.

A Cuckoo Idea About Savings

THIS NEWSPAPER has never been able to swallow the assertion so frequently laded out in Washington that the savings of the people are inflationary. We have heard it stated time and time again that these savings constitute a most dangerous factor. To the notion of this newspaper they are something exactly opposite.

The Securities and Exchange Commission, for example, has announced, with obvious alarm, that the people have too much money in reserve. It points out that, after paying the increased income taxes for the first quarter of this year, total savings were around $9,900,000,000, which is not so far below the record high of $10,500,000,000 in the fourth quarter of 1942.

The alleged inflationary threat seems considerably exaggerated when the figures given by the SEC are broken down. Of the total, $3,500,000,000 represented corporation cash deposits and increments. Of the $6,400,000,000 resulting from individual savings, $700,000,000 went to reduction of debt other than mortgage debt; $2,600,000,000 went into government bonds and $800,000,000 went into life insurance. Hence, but $2,100,000,000 remained available for consumption demands should the owners care to spend it in that way.

There doesn't appear to be much of an inflation threat anywhere in that distribution. Corporations certainly must have some money on hand, if possible, for conversion and other purposes; and surely insurance and government bond investment are not inflationary. As for the bonds, the government has repeatedly assured the people that they will help curb inflation.

Now, this money saved by the people cannot be expected to be showered around for unnecessary purchases. If such were the case, it would long ago have been spent. If people with money in the bank were foolish spenders, they wouldn't have the money there. The type of person who lays aside some money for the proverbial rainy day is not the type to go on a reckless spending spree just for the fun of it.

No, there need be no worry about inflationary spending by the thrifty. Instead of trying to wring their savings from them, the governmental backers of that theory would do better to encourage them in their thrift and similarly to get a little of it at least into government. All this worry about people having too much money in their savings accounts is the result either of the senseless spending idea so long exploited in Washington or a sly effort of those in public authority to get their hands on more of it.

It is a cuckoo idea, any way you look at it, that savings are dangerous and that thrift is a crime.

What To Do With Italy

THE CONQUEST of Italy is well under way and plans are already being discussed as to what shall be done with the government, the people and the territory.

As for the people and the territory, both will be a distinct liability for the Allies, particularly the United States. The people, half starved, will have to be cared for. The United States, of course, wants no foot of territory. It will be up to the United Nations to organize some sort of temporary government, some sort of military occupational authority at first, until the Italian peoples can organize a decent government of their own, which, of course, must be without vestige of fascism or nazism. Little worry need be given over the question of disarmament, that having already been pretty well taken care of, or will be by the time the white flag goes up for the whole country. There will have to be, of course, some restraint on possible future belligerency.

As for Mussolini and the gang of yes men around him, they ought to be taken out on a hill and hanged as high as Hamen. Perhaps King Victor Emanuel should be included as an accessory, after if not before the fact. Not for vengeance. Not for retaliation. But as a world example that those in high ruling places shall see for once and for all that embarkment upon greedy conquest involves personal as well as material danger. The idea that has obtained in the past that a defeated war-mongering ruler can slip away or be put away in some place of security to live in ease, comfort and luxury the rest of his life should be out. If Mussolini and his gang manage to sneak away to some neutral country, which they will undoubtedly try to do, demand should be made upon such country by the United Nations for their immediate surrender.

Yet, some softies may say it would be unfair to hang Mussolini and his gang without a trial. Huh! They have been on trial for three years and by all standards of justice, decency and humanity, they have proved themselves guilty of the senseless sacrifice of more than a million Italians and of countless wealth. The same penalty should go for Hitler and his murderous stooges, and for the heads of the war machine in Japan.

More Than Science Is in the Picture

STIMULATION of scientific research and the application of known improvements in materials and processes under pressure of war urgency have inspired much discussion of a vast improvement in communication, transportation and the general activities of the people at work and recreation.

So much expectation of ease and convenience has been aroused that some manufacturers have cautioned against over-optimism. They fear the consequences of disappointments over the failure of current promises. They point to the possibility that the people will lose heart and not be interested in the improvements which will be at hand.

The average American of average years is not much concerned about the debate. He has seen too many miracles to be much astonished by the prospects of air travel for all, television, prefabricated houses, defeat of adverse weather conditions and the conquest of disease and even fatigue. He is sure that better days are ahead, that the rising generation will accept them as its right, and that soon new hardships will develop to stimulate further application of scientific discovery to the troubles of man.

Much is expected and much will be produced. That is America. And as far as material things go, no one would have it otherwise. But all the miracles of convenience will avail little unless they promote mastery of the art of living, a higher sense of citizen responsibility in matters of government and revival of the security which is afforded only by productive labor.

Nazis Are Likely Short of Oil

SOME OF THE EXPERTS are saying that America's theoretical maximum war effort on the offensive side may be reduced as much as one-third because gasoline and lubricants will not be available in sufficient quantities.

To meet the situation the oil industry has been calling insistently for higher prices to finance exploration and increase production. The increase has not been forthcoming, perhaps because the materials for drilling are not available.

At any rate, the present wells are being pumped at as rapid a rate as is considered safe and new sources comprise the only domestic solution. In this situation the oil resources of the Middle East, largely under British control, may again become available for use in the Allied war effort. It is reported refinery equipment is being rushed to the area to be available when the Mediterranean is cleared for tankers.

America's situation emphasizes the plight Germany must be in. There are reports that the Rumanian fields are beginning to run dry. Synthetic plants in Germany have been battered by the Allied air forces. American planes are fueled with 100-octane gasoline. Many of Hitler's planes are reported to be sputtering along on 80-octane fuel. As the News has heretofore surmised, lack of oil may be what has happened to the Luftwaffe.

A Toronto-born actress says Montreal, Canada, is the most beautiful city in North America. War or no war, this is a challenge no chamber of commerce can take lying down.

The young fellow who is eagerly reading about post war science marvels probably is looking for news about a dwarf lawn grass and a weedless garden.

The greatest victory on the home front continues to be that of the housewife over the official who thought up the unsliced bread idea.

The New Deal has made the American farmer the world's prize pueria pig.

Brass Tacks

By MARSHALL MASLIN

As far back as I can remember I've heard people saying: "Well, let's get down to Brass Tacks!" And whenever they've said that, they meant: "Let's see what the DISAGREEABLE FACTS are."

Marshall Maslin

They meant: "The facts are that you played hooky instead of going to school."

They meant: "In plain English, you don't do what you said you would."

They meant: "The truth of it is that you're broke. You owe me $500 and you haven't more than a dollar to your name."

They meant: "What actually happened is that your girl ran away with another fellow."

That's what Brass Tacks have always meant to people — unpalatable, annoying situations they'd like to avoid but don't see how they can. The "REAL" things.

But Brass Tacks might just as well mean something else. There's no law compelling them to mean the seamy side of a situation. They might mean the more cheerful side, too, the OTHER side.

Brass Tacks, when you are broke, might mean that you still have health and youth—or, if you are old, that you enjoyed your money while you had it.

Brass Tacks, if you are miserable, might mean that even this unhappiness will pass away and that next week you will be happy again.

They might mean that because one person has proved untrue, not ALL are false.

Good food, a comfortable bed, a true friend, a kindness, a pleasant memory, a great book, sweet singing, rare music, a dog's friendliness, a perfect flower, a chirping bird, clever acting, a chuckling baby, a good vacation, interesting work, family affection—all these may be counted as Brass Tacks, too, because they are fully as real as the hard-luck side of living.

Dutch Still Fight The Axis Despite Loss of Empire

By Central Press

Although Nazi Germany has held their homeland in her iron fist for three years, the Dutch still rank as one of the most formidable of the United Nations.

The government-in-exile, set up in London and headed by the venerable Queen Wilhelmina, continues to wage a ceaseless economic and military war against the Axis triumvirate.

The Royal Netherlands Navy ranks third in strength among the sea powers of the United Nations. The Dutch have more than 60 effective warcraft participating in the war upon the high seas. Holland's merchant marine, consisting of almost three million tons, is the fourth largest among the Allies and is manned by more than 20,000 veteran Dutch seamen.

They Prefer Death

In Holland, its army of 400,000 shattered by German blitzkrieg, and Rotterdam and other vital centers still heaped of rubble from Nazi aerial assaults in May, 1940, the Dutch have maneuvered their conquerors into a difficult position. They have shown their German masters that they will not collaborate in any program hatched in Berlin and they will die before acquiescing.

Confronted with this incurable stubbornness, the Nazis have wisely refrained from saddling the people with measures too extreme. The Germans have moved cautiously in disciplining the Dutch, knowing that one step too far may ignite their uprisings.

The Nazis are haunted with the possibilities of an Allied invasion into Hitler's European fortress via Holland, where countless inlets and harbors, rivers and canals, would aid a seaborne drive. If the Nazis are too harsh and severe, the people will rise up against them and probably precipitate such disorders and riots that the German military organization would be disrupted and would be vulnerable to a sustained Allied attack.

Germany's Predicament

On the other hand, the Germans know that if they do not take thorough measures, the people will rise simultaneously with an Allied invasion and the aid of these civilian masses would smother Nazi military power.

The Japs seized the richest areas of the Dutch empire when they overran the extensive Netherlands possessions in the South Pacific. There, too, the Dutch put up a stubborn but hopeless fight against the hordes of better-armed, little brown men from Nippon. The Netherlands sea forces drowned thousands of Japanese troops in the shark-infested lairs in Macassar Straits in a futile attempt to stem the onrush.

The surviving ships, seamen, planes and pilots fled to Australia after the collapse and have been serving effectively under Gen. Douglas MacArthur. The Allied generalissimo in the South Pacific has mapped out a program of training for thousands of Dutch aviators and they will spearhead the drive to regain Borneo, Sumatra and Java.

In Caribbean Area

Fragments of the Dutch empire remain in the Caribbean area and are administered by the Allies in co-operation with the Netherlands government-in-exile. The tiny coral island of Aruba, part of the Caracac chain, is the site of a large oil refinery plant which supplies ships and planes of all the Allies.

Officers of the Dutch government-in-exile and of her forces still in the war have co-operated in the war with the Allies. In the South Pacific particularly her naval leaders have taken on important responsibilities. They have been to the United States and have joined in mapping out the overall

JUST THE FRONT EDGE OF THE STORM

Serious Food Situation Calls for New Plan of Distribution, Paul Mallon Says

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 15. — The peril on the home front was adequately presented recently by the simultaneous announcements issued by the government bureaus in charge.

A simple understanding of the confused administrative dangers can be obtained by just putting these official statements side-by-side.

Labor Secretary Perkins announced a survey by her Women's Bureau had disclosed thousands of war workers inadequately fed and she urged mass feeding in lunches at the plants. Absenteeism she traced to debility, anemia and indigestion, due primarily to "inadequate supply of food at places of work."

On that same day, Donald Nelson announced that the goods upon which war workers and civilians live, will have to be cut another twenty per cent from existing rations by the end of the year.

More Beef Taken

At precisely that moment, also, the War Department announced it was taking forty-five percent of the beef left after June 14 for the army.

In short, the government proposes to cut more of what the government says is already inadequate, or at least inadequately distributed. By varying and conflicting conclusions, it seems to proclaim it has reached the point where it cannot make both ends meet.

To top this off (still the same day), the national canners, in convention assembled, heard that canneries were being closed because increased wages would not permit profitable operations even with subsidies.

To top this (also same day), the agriculture department announced food production this year would be far less than last year and less than estimated.

Here then is the problem in all its simple reality—not alone the problem of food, because precisely the same elements of trouble show in many lines (gasoline, synthetic rubber, even manpower and piece-wages, where both ends similarly are failing to meet.)

Security or Independence?

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligence

At the risk of injecting a sour note into the security symphony, we suggest that the American people vary their contemplation of a government-provided existence with this excerpt from one of Lincoln's contributions to American thinking:

"Prosperity is the fruit of labor; prosperity is desirable: is a positive good to the world. . . . That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence is just an encouragement to industry and enterprise. Let not him who is homeless pull down the house of another, but let him labor diligently to build one of his own."

But, of course, Lincoln didn't believe in social security. Otherwise, he would not have given independence to the most secure class this land ever knew—the slaves of the South. He harbored the quaint notion that man prefers liberty to the assurance of food and a roof.

through all the gold braid and red tape in Washington.

Some Faring Necessary

Such an authority could reasonably require the military and lend-lease to economize, avoid waste, take only what is essential — not necessarily what they first ask, not what they would like to have under abundance or for political effect abroad. Someone must gauge minimum civilian requirements as well, and meet them also with the available supply.

Such an authority recently has been created, but has not yet acted as far as anyone outside knows from reading the conflicting government announcements.

Th. Byrnes-Baruch over-all control has all the legal power in the world, but no one can give it the necessary courage to make the domestic economy work. It will first have to break down the "jealous prerogatives" of all the interested government bureaus, and do its re-distributions in such a fair and reasonable way as to inspire public confidence in the results it obtains.

In short, it must find where reasonableness lies and take the whole domestic war economy to that point — without much more delay.

Conference Just a Flop

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

If, for instance, a dramatic critic had been assigned to the international food conference at Hot Springs, Va., he would have labeled it quite definitely as a flop. As a show it did not live up to its advance billing; as a conference it was worth less than nothing for the results have been phrased in some of the loosest language ever read.

For instance, the secretary general of the conference in his report, carefully streamlined and smoothed out so that Mr. Roosevelt's censorship would be complied with, had this profound statement to make:

"The conference recognized that a great increase would be needed in the production of food if progress was to be made toward freedom from want."

This particular piece of wisdom was brought forth after seventeen days of conferring amid the scenic beauties surrounding the Homestead hotel. At another point, the report says:

"In addition, the conference recommended measures for new agricultural development. It was the opinion of the conference that some parts of the world which had been unproductive could be brought into agricultural production if the appropriate measures were applied."

This interesting deduction is known, of course, to every primary school pupil who must study geography. It has been estimated that if the Sahara desert could be irrigated, it would make a sizeable garden. Or, if the effort were put forth, the incredibly fertile tropical areas could be put to the production of food.

What is obvious from these ponderous conclusions arrived at in intellectual vacuum is that the conference suffered from too much of a build-up.

It would be the duty of such an authority to establish on a basis of reasonableness the point at which the ends should meet the minimum requirements of all sides, and then crack the whip to bring them there, if it requires cutting

Allied Strategists Forsee Japanese Attack on Siberia

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

Anglo-American strategists are expecting the Japs to strike next into Russian continental Asia—Siberia. Probably Germany is expecting the same thing. Doubtless the Russians are expecting it also. The Chinese certainly are hoping so. It will be a good thing for the Americans and British likewise.

Why Japan has been so slow about it is obvious enough.

The Japs evidently thought they could walk over China in pretty short order and considered it expedient to dispose of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek before taking on any additional contracts. The mainland Orientals, though, surely have put up a stiffer and more prolonged fight than the islanders had anticipated. While that war was raging, all of today's complications developed. At present they have reached proportions against which Nippon cannot keep its eye shut.

Odds for Japanese

There are quite a few odds in Tokyo's favor.

These Chinese have manpower and nerve but little equipment. Superior Jap firearms and aviation more than offset the mainlanders' numbers and courage.

Russia is desperately occupied with Germany.

In a two-country fight the Soviets ought to be able to lick the island empire. True, the Muscovites tried it in the czars' time and did not win. They did not lack plenty of good scrappers, but they WERE shy then as to equipment and organization. The outcome was a Russian victory, as a matter of fact, but, as per the empire, the Japs got the decision.

It would be fatal to the Japs to have the verdict reversed in the current instance.

Time Is Opportune

Now's the moment for them to hop on the Moscow folk while the latter are absorbed in Europe.

The United States and democratic Europe are in the soup. Asiatically speaking, because of their respective geographies. Aeronautography is what the western world has to figure on on our opposite side of the Pacific.

As the war winds up?

The Axis will be licked Europeanly. But may not it be a break for Japan?

Then what?

Will China be in a state of permanent surrender to the Japs?

If so, the Mikado will be the Orient's boss in perpetuity, or else the conflict will continue forever afterward.

No? It won't be that way? China will go on fighting into eternity?

Long War

If the answers are in the affirmative, the Eastern war will last interminably.

Oh, Japan will be licked finally, but it may take a generation.

Believe me, I know those Japs. I've lived among them. They CAN be civilized.

Their ordinary folk can be as civilized as anyone. It is their military class that has to be classified separately. And it is a SMALL class, numerically. The Jap "Samurai" and the German "Junkers" are similar.

There are nice Germans. We know that. If you know the Japs, you will find that they have got a decent element, too.

I was acquainted with Jap newspapermen when I lived among them.

Regarded as Cannibals

They agreed, in those days, that the militarists are cannibals. That is what they said, among themselves. It is what they told ME.

Of course, they can't afford to say so now.

It is somewhat similar to the Italian situation.

Signor Mussolini's government is despicably pro-Axis, but not the bulk of the Italian people. There are respectable Japs, too. This does not mean that they haven't got to be fought. They do not have to be hated, though, also. Not personally.

Hated?—the government—yes! Individuals? I have my doubts.

The Mikado? I am skeptical that the Mikado has any more to say as to Japan than I have. He is just locally bossed around. And by a small group, too!

Before the war the Kahlers and their children—Margaret, 16, William, Jr., 14, Dorothy, 13, and Edward, 7—farmed 184 acres. But when war came they purchased fifty-one more acres and rented an additional fifteen.

They increased their dairy herd from twenty-three to forty-two head and their beef cattle from thirty-one to sixty-six.

Selected as typical of the state's rural families who signed the 1943 Agricultural Adjustment Agency program of production and soil conservation, the Kahlers' "total war" effort:

The family tractor works for neighbors when it is not busy at home and the truck hauls milk from neighborhood farms to the main highways.

Mrs. Kahler cares for her four children, cooks for the family and hired hands, runs the household, nurses neighbors who are ill, raises broilers, cultivates a victory garden—packing 800 jars of fruits and vegetables, markets from 20 to 25 dozen eggs daily, and helps operate the Kahler stall in the Lexington market in Baltimore.

The whole family assists with the milking. William, Jr., is an expert tractor operator and the older girl, Margaret, is hardly less expert. All the children help with the chores.

The Kahlers' certificate of service was presented by James W. Lord, chairman of the Howard County United States Department of Agriculture War Board, and was signed by Claude R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture.

WOMEN AND GIRLS WILL HELP IN HARVEST

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 15 (AP)—The University of Maryland

extension service announced today a camp to house about 100 women and girls for harvesting of crops would be opened on June 20, to continue through Labor day.

Dorothy Emerson, in charge of recruiting for the women's land army and victory farm volunteer girls, said the camp would be located on the Magothly river near Gibson's island, Anne Arundel county.

The site formerly was a boys' camp.

Farmers have guaranteed to give campers work at least seventy-five per cent of the workable days, with pay to be in line with the prevailing wage and the ability of the worker.

The first job is expected to be picking beans, Miss Emerson added. She said girls fourteen years of age and over and all women with necessary physical qualifications for farm work may register. Enrollment may be for the entire season or for one or more weeks at a time.

Blood Plasma Saves Lieutenant's life

BALTIMORE, June 15. (AP)—The life of Lieut. Ralph Duane Good, Medical Corps, United States Naval Reserve, was saved by blood plasma—the same fluid with which he had been saving the lives of others—when his ship was torpedoed off the Moroccan coast.

Lieut. Good, now stationed at the Baltimore Red Cross blood donor center, was a medical officer on board the Navy Transport Tasker

H. Bliss. His ship, which was in the large convoy taking the American Expeditionary Force to North Africa, as anchored about twelve miles off Casablanca. Troops and supplies were being unloaded when the vessel was hit by a torpedo from an enemy submarine.

Good was injured in the explosion, taken ashore, and then transferred to another transport where he received the life-saving plasma.

A native of Wilkesburg, Pa., Lieut. Good took his premedical training at Allegheny college in Meadville, Pa. He attended Rush Medical school in Chicago, interned at Allegheny General hospital in Pittsburgh and was commissioned in June, 1942.

Little things that become Big Things weather, — plating with lacquer, copper, cadmium, nickel, chrome, zinc, silver, lead—dipping in dichromate, sealing with plastics. A vast cycle of experiments were tried and tested and the results compared. From all this effort came a standardized product made of steel, and approved for use on all the battle fronts.

The making of this ammunition is really the art of producing many pieces rapidly—many thousands per minute, every day, 6 days a week. Ninety-nine operations are performed to take each piece of ammunition from the lead, steel and powder stage to the formed, loaded, tested and packed, finished article—ready to shoot, — with every piece perfect in shape, finish, and firing efficiency.

We have made our first billion of this steel ammunition. Not that this is a top record for ammunition making but, to us, it is a milestone passed on the road to Victory. We will pass the second and third billion with much less emotion but we really got a thrill out of joining the ranks of the important producers of ammunition.

With this change to steel we release, with every billion rounds, thousands of tons of brass. This brass can now be used in war production where no other substitute is possible.

"A LITTLE THING BECAME BIG"

A finished round of ammunition weighs only a few ounces. Little things often do become really big and important.

THE U. S. ARMY Ordnance Department, early in 1942, asked one of our executives if we had a factory near a good supply of water, of sufficient size to make small calibre ammunition at the rate of many millions every twenty-four hours. We had such a factory on the Ohio River with enough feet of floor space.

"FROM CARPS TO BULLETS FOR TOMMY GUNS, PISTOLS, REVOLVERS"

It was well placed near additional unused land and far enough from the city to allow the storage of powder and the loading and testing of ammunition.

The work of preparation was started immediately. The automobile machinery in the plant, which could not be used, was dismantled and put elsewhere. It was replaced by new and different equipment. A specialized laboratory was installed and staffed with engineers, metallurgists, and technicians drawn from our widely diversified staff. Production executives and specialists were also selected from our own personnel. While the factory was being prepared for production, the Frankford arsenal assisted the training of these production specialists who, in turn, were to train the workers and supervise the operation of the many departments of the plant.

The first finished ammunition produced in this newly organized plant went on test in May, 1942. The cartridge cases were then made of brass. Brass is an extremely vital war material. Could steel be used instead? Could steel be worked over the machinery and tools that were provided for the use of brass? Could the steel be treated to withstand the corrosion of a long sea voyage and to resist successfully the humidity of the tropics and the sub-zero temperatures of the Arctic? The U. S. Army Ordnance Department—and our own engineers, metallurgists and technicians believed it could. More engineering talent—this time chemists—were added to the laboratory staff and the larger and more complete Chrysler Corporation's laboratories, in Detroit, were also directed to the solution of this problem.

The first of the new steel casings were made in the month of August, 1942. They were pretty good. Then began severe testing,—spraying with wet salt air, burying in salty mud marshes washed by the tide,—storing in hot damp rooms and open exposure to the

Natural Food Is Best for Babies, Dr. Myers Says

Mother, When She Nurses
Infant, Builds Feeling of Security

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

The mother, who can, is wise to give her infant natural food, unless her doctor advises otherwise. He rarely will. He knows that breastfed babies, as a rule, have a better chance to live and keep well than do babies bottlefed.

Even with the greatest care by the mother at sterilizing bottles and foods, the infant's feeding can hardly be as safe from the bottle as from the breast. This, obviously, is particularly true during wartime when doctors are so scarce and in congested and rural areas.

If you are willing to stay home, you will find the care of your infant much easier and simpler if you give it nature's food. You might, of course, plan early for an emergency or opportunity to be away for several hours at a stretch occasionally, by introducing the bottle early for one feeding a day, preferably not at the same feeding period every day. Be sure to sterilize the bottle very well then and select the milk or formula as your doctor advises.

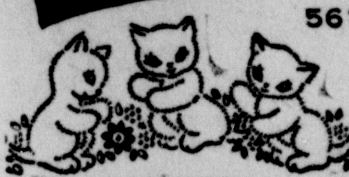

While no wise mother will travel, except by car, with the infant, unless absolutely necessary, how much easier for her and safer for the infant, should she travel with it as a nursing baby.

Builds Feeling of Security

While you nurse your baby you naturally cuddle him. It cultivates your mutual endearments and builds in the infant a good foundation for feelings of security. In case your baby is bottle-fed, hold him when he takes the bottle by day. Nurses are instructed to do so in some modern hospitals.

At regular intervals, take your baby to the doctor. You will be able to co-operate best with your doctor if you will read such bulletins on infant care as those to be had free from the Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C., and if you will also

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—
Now her Backache is better
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Gastric Analysis, Used in Diagnosis, Was Attempted in Eighteenth Century

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

This week we have been discussing the value of the examination of the blood to the doctor who is making a diagnosis of his patient and have tried to tell something about the procedure he goes through in order to examine the blood. Today I wish to take up other laboratory methods of examination of different fluids of the body. The medical profession and physicians have been very ingenious in submitting every secretion, fluid and excretion of the body to examination in health and disease. One of the first of the body secretions to be examined was the gastric juice—the secretion of the walls of the stomach during the process of digestion.

Attempts were made to obtain this as far back as the eighteenth century when an ambitious German physician invented a kind of brush on the end of a long wire, which he poked down his patient's gullet and mopped up the inside of the stomach, very much like one of the instruments used to clean kitchen pans and bottles.

Beginning of Gastric Analysis

This method was not very satisfactory and the real beginning of gastric analysis was when a Dr. Kussmaul had a patient in his ward who was called Der Weiner (The Wiener). The poor thing whined all the time and for good reason, because she had an obstruction in her stomach and secretions dammed back and kept her bloated. Dr. Kussmaul conceived the idea of putting a tube down and washing out her stomach, which gave her great relief. Remember, this was only as short a time ago as 1870. With this Kussmaul tube the stomach specialists were able to remove stomach contents and make a chemical and microscopic examination of them.

At rest the stomach is quite empty of all secretions and presents a dry and glistening surface. But almost immediately after the intake of food, secretion begins and within an hour it is almost at its height.

In the early period of analysis of the stomach contents, the juice was removed an hour after a small meal and many profound conclusions were adduced on the basis of this examination. In fact, before the x-ray began to be used to visualize the stomach, the analysis of the gastric juice was about the only stock in trade of the stomach specialist.

The specialty thrived in those palmy days. In fact, as I remember it, practically every other doctor on the North Side of Chicago was a stomach specialist when I spent my internship there. But in the course of time the general practitioners and general surgeons found out there wasn't very much value in the examination of the stomach contents.

The stomach specialists were prone to say that when a person had a great deal of acid in his stomach contents, that meant he had ulcer and that when he had no acid at all, that meant he had cancer. But the surgeons soon found that sometimes there were cases of cancer of the stomach with plenty of acid and cases of ulcer with no acid at all and dependence on the pronouncements drawn from analysis of the gastric juice are taken very skeptically by the diagnostician today.

One fluid of the body which has proved of surprising value in the diagnostic examination is the cerebrospinal fluid. This is a clear, watery-looking fluid which surrounds the brain and spinal cord. When these are diseased, they are likely to pour dregs into the fluid, which can be detected by chemical and microscopic examination and which throw light on a great many conditions.

Questions and Answers

E. R.:—Would a surgical operation for varicose veins be dangerous for a person with tuberculosis? Would elevating the leg and applying ice packs about five minutes each day be of any benefit?

Answer: Varicose veins are best treated, not by operation but by injection. They are not dangerous in a person with tuberculosis. Treatment by elevating the leg and applying an ice pack is merely palliative and will not have permanent good.

County Residents
Receive Warning
Beetle Attack*County Farm Agent Says
Japanese Pests Will Begin Flying Soon

Residents of Allegany county are advised to prepare themselves for a Japanese air attack within the next ten days, because it is within that period, County Agent Ralph F. McHenry says, that the Japanese beetles will begin flying and making their raids on crops, gardens and ornamental plants.

McHenry urges that now is the time to take precautions and make preparations for protection against the annual pests which this year threaten to do justice to their name.

According to the county agent, the county, the department of entomology of the University of Maryland and the United States Department of Agriculture will continue their co-operative control work, but due to the serious labor shortage it will be necessary to adjust the program to the emergencies brought on by the war.

Outlines County Program

The program for this county this year will, in the main, consist of the establishment of disease and parasites for the purpose of ultimately reducing beetles to the status of a minor pest, McHenry said. A few traps will be operated in all sections of the county for information on the abundance of beetles so that the disease and parasites may be established on an intelligent basis, he added. A limited number of traps will be operated in towns with old infestations for retardation and to obtain data for use in analyzing the effectiveness of disease and parasites already established.

In commenting on control, McHenry said that if beetles became numerous enough to cause damage this year, detailed information on the various control remedies could be secured by communicating with his office in the court house here.

Describes Method of Control

McHenry described the methods of control that are being used as follows:

Parasites—The parasites being used are Tiphia wasps that rear their young on Japanese beetle larvae.

Milky disease—The milky disease is giving excellent results. It is a disease which destroys the beetle when in the grub stage. Every effort is being made to get the soil in all sections of the county inoculated with the disease. To date the disease has been placed on 1,406 properties in the county.

Spraying—Sprays provide an effective means of protecting foliage from serious damage. They do not kill the beetle, but if foliage is kept covered throughout the season, most of the beetles are repelled and damage will be limited. Any good spray made with lead arsenate, or even a hydrated lime, will do the job.

Traps—Traps provide a practical means of catching large quantities of beetles. Individuals using traps must not expect one or two traps to catch all of the beetles in a community or on a farm. But if used in numbers and properly placed, they will catch a sufficient quantity to relieve damage. The greatest amount of relief may be had through a combination of spraying and trapping.

end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Taylor Crump, Standish street. Capt. Crump is attached to the Letterkenney Ordnance Depot, Chambersburg.

Mrs. Alice Ramey Luman will leave this week for Denver, Colo., to visit her husband, Pvt. Harry J. Luman, who is in training with the ski troops at Camp Hale, Pando, Colo.

Mrs. Arthur G. Ramey is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dutrow, Charles Town, W. Va.

MARYLAND CANNERY SEEKS SOLDIER AID

HAGERSTOWN, Md., June 15 (AP)—Asserting that more than 200 tons of ripe peas were threatened with total ruin within the next few days because of a shortage of labor to can them, officials of the Southern Packing Company at Cavetown announced today they had opened negotiations seeking to enlist soldier aid.

Officials of the Washington county plant said they were conferring with a nearby military camp in an effort to have soldiers assigned to work in the cannery.

More than 300 acres of peas are being picked and unless help can be obtained to pack them, they will be unfit to can in a few days, a representative of the company said. He declared forty or fifty workers were needed immediately.

This official said his company was forbidden to use penal farm labor because of interstate commerce restrictions, and added that conscientious objectors were not available.

He declared that the peas have ripened and must be picked and packed immediately or they will harden and be worthless, adding that each acre represented about 100 cases of peas.

State Industries Ready To Replace 32,000 Workers

Selective Service Expected To Take That Number in Six Months

BALTIMORE, June 15 (AP)—A Maryland Selective Service official said today that at the rate young men are being taken into the armed services, industries of the state must find approximately 32,000 replacements monthly.

Lieut. Col. Paul K. Klaessius, state occupational adviser for selective service, said that in the next six months war and essential industries are prepared to replace a total of 32,000 male workers.

He told newspapermen that the 192 industries participating in a replacement schedule program now employ about 238,000 persons, of whom 38,000 are women. That means, Klaessius said, that about one out of every three men in industry must be replaced.

He declared there was a marked trend toward employment of women, saying that in January the participating industries employed one woman out of seven employees, whereas now payrolls include one woman for every three men.

Klaessius said Selective Service was co-operating with industry in an effort to see that the wisest possible use is made of the state's manpower.

"For the first time in their history," he said, "many industries now have an accurate, thoroughgoing inventory of one of their most valuable assets—manpower."

"Much of this information has long been possessed by personnel managers; now top-management knows the facts. It means industry knows what each man in each job is doing and what he is capable of, and what the job demands in the way of training and experience."

"With these facts carefully catalogued it becomes relatively simple to ascertain just how long it will take to train a replacement for any particular post."

broke out in the bombed areas and heavy explosions were seen.

This followed widespread aerial activity of the previous day in which Russian planes knocked out seven enemy batteries, wrecked several trains and destroyed or damaged at least forty troop and supply trucks.

An attempt by a company of German troops to attack a Russian outpost south of Balaklava cost the enemy sixty men in killed alone, the bulletin said.

Russian artillerymen shelling German positions west of Rostov were reported to have wiped out about two companies of enemy infantry in addition to destroying guns, blockhouses and observation posts.

Soviet gunners in the Sevsk area destroyed a German artillery battery and routed a supply column, while in another sector they knocked out guns and blockhouses.

On the front west of Moscow, Russian units were said to have wiped out about 200 German officers and men and silenced half a dozen artillery and mortar batteries.

Resolution Adopted

"It should be clear that legislation which affords an opportunity for this type of activity will only initiate a period of terrific internal strife and conflict within our nation that must be disastrous in terms of the present need for national unity to win the war."

The executive board of the AFL-Brotherhood of Teamsters adopted a resolution saying "we feel that a serious threat to our ambition of absolute adherence to the no-strike pledge is contained in the Connally bill. If this bill becomes a law, we fear that the influence of labor leaders will be lessened and that they may not be able to control the restiveness and resentment of the great masses of loyal workers."

had held a ninety-minute conference Monday with President Ismet Inonu, twenty-four hours before the frontier closure was reported. His was the latest in a series of trips into Turkey by Allied war leaders beginning with Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Ankara Feb. 1.

Axis Gravely Concerned

Premier Sukru Saracoglu was reported by the German radio to have told the Peoples Party Congress that "the alliance with England is not confirmed to a fixed number of years, but extends for a long term and covers extensive ground."

On relations with Russia, the Germans said he declared that "long-term treaties have created a solid basis for their relations," and that Turkey's friendship pact with Germany was "shown by events to be in the true interests of both parties."

Plainly the reports created concern in Axis circles whether great military events might not be stirring in the backdoor route to Europe, and heightened invasion nervousness.

Axis radios told of new attacks against Allied warships, transports and landing barges reported gathering off North African ports and threatening Sicily. A Rome commentator called upon the Italian people to prepare for "the decisive phase approaching."

The Italian official journal published a new decree imposing heavy punishment on anyone failing to report a landing of enemy armed forces or enemy agents, the Rome radio, recorded by the Associated Press, said tonight.

Says Danger Ever-Present

A Berlin broadcast, recorded by Reuters, reminded the Germans the ever-present danger in the East, reporting that the Russians were massing south of Moscow.

Uncertain where the Allied blow might fall, the Germans were reported dividing their important commands and posting their best generals at critical areas on the European coastline.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was reported commanding German forces in Southern France, across from the Allied armies in Algeria.

His command was said to cover roughly the former unoccupied zone, while Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt retains command of Western France and the Atlantic wall.

A similar split was reported from the same quarters to have been made in Norway, with Gen. Nikolaus Von Falken Horst's territory being reduced to the area from Trondheim south, including Oslo, and Col. Oen, Edward Dietl, commander in Finland, entrusted with Northern Norway. Field Marshal Siegmund Wilhelm List already was reported commanding in Southeast Europe.

years in the army, General Schmidt assumed command of the Seventy-sixth last Dec. 18.

Early today the men demonstrated the use of the Garand and other rifles on the post range, and then showed how they are trained to become proficient in damaging low-flying airplanes with small arms.

They shot at wire-suspended dummy planes in level flight and in dives. They next went to the infiltration course where every member of the division from General Schmidt on down trains over a course made difficult to traverse by barbed wire, ditches and obstacles.

While tracer and live machine gun bullets whistled over the course, frequently not more than fifteen inches off the ground, the men crawled on their stomachs or, when they came to tangled barbed wire, on their backs while they lifted the wire over their bodies.

Then the soldiers went to the artillery range for a demonstration of 105 and 155 mm guns, after which the camouflage course was shown. Here various types of concealment, including nets, foxhole concealments and camouflaged uniforms were shown. Using one type of disguised uniform, the men were undistinguishable twenty feet away.

Guns Cover Assault

Medium tanks then simulated an attack on an army command post, after which a ten-man combat team staged an attack on a pillbox in the most spectacular demonstration of the day.

Using two flame throwers, two Bangalore torpedoes which are used to clear mine fields and barbed wire obstructions, and one long pole tipped with two sticks of dynamite, the men charged up a hill through the woods to capture the pillbox. A 37 mm gun covered the assault.

The men then staged a demonstration on the Ranger course, where every man of the division is trained in "dirty" fighting, and a poison gas exhibition.

Present at the demonstration were Brig. Gen. Francis A. Woolfley, assistant commander of the Seventy-sixth; Brig. Gen. Henry E. Evans, commander of the division artillery battalions; Col. George S. Eyster, division chief of staff; and Maj. Gen. Emil P. Reinhardt, commander of the Thirtieth Army Corps and until last December commander of the Seventy-sixth.

There was no discussion during the conference of "the amount or manner" of new or additional taxes, Doughton said, but the parley caused a renewal of speculation about the possibility that Congress will consider proposals for a federal retail sales tax.

Knox's comment on replacements was considered especially significant in view of the navy's announcement of Japanese ship losses yesterday, which raised the total of successful attacks by submarine hammering at Japan's extended supply lines to 256 ships destroyed or damaged.

Knox said that yesterday's reports, the largest in terms of successful submarine action so far in the war, evidenced "a steady growth of our submarine operations in the Pacific." A small number of new submarines goes into action every month, he explained, and moreover the men who fight in them are learning with experience.

The secretary gave no specific figures on submarine construction. The last figure reported by the navy were those which came out immediately before American entrance into the war. The table then showed 111 submarines built and seventy-three building, a total of 184. Since that time, however, submarine construction has been speeded up and Congress has appropriated many millions for additional units.

Jap Bomber Damaged

The navy's only combat report from the Pacific today disclosed that on Sunday night Japanese planes dropped "a small number of bombs" over American-held Guadalcanal Island in the Southeastern Solomons. The war bulletin stated that "no personal or material casualties occurred." Guadalcanal had been raided last on the night of May 23.

Earlier Sunday, the communique said, navy fighter planes damaged a Japanese reconnaissance bomber in the South Pacific, but the specific location of the action was not given.

Economist Predicts Food Shortages

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—Critical food shortages, caused by a combination of war circumstances, were foreseen today by agriculturalists and economists who advocated a change in the nation's diet and an end of the government's control programs to ease the situation. W. I. Myers, Cornell university economist, called for a reduction in meat consumption by civilians and an increase in the consumption of wheat, soybeans, corn and dried peas and beans. Speaking at the Dairyman's League Co-operative Association Food Forum, Myers said that "direct consumption"—feeding the crops to livestock—as much as eighty-four per cent of the food energy was lost.

In outlining a "realistic wartime food program," Myers advised the elimination of all government control programs and payments restricting the production of essential crops; establishment of prices for essential foods well in advance of planting and breeding season and an increase in the production of all important food crops.

Rush at Internal Revenue Office Here Falls Off

Cashiers at the local Federal internal revenue office were kept busy yesterday as the time for the payment of the second installment of the 1942 income taxes drew to a close but the rush that threatened during the first hour never developed.

Richard J. Stakem, deputy internal revenue collector, stated that everyone who wished to pay his second installment here did so. He stated that while the line yesterday was small it was constant and that the six cashiers were busy all day. Under the new pay-as-you-go plan wage earners will no longer have to make quarterly payments but seasonal rushes may develop when employers turn in the money they have collected.

FOUR DEEDS FILED IN CIRCUIT COURT

Four deeds were entered for recording in circuit court yesterday. James L. Shay and Laura C. Shay, Westernport, conveyed to George R. Davis, of Mineral county, W. Va., property in Morrison's second addition to Westernport, for about $6,500.

Mary H. Vocke and Frank J. Vocke sold to Maurice Nicholas, lots near what is known as the "old Camp Ground" west of Cumberland, for about $500.

Margaret E. Blaul conveyed to James E. Hare and Evelyn Hare, property near Winchester bridge on the National Pike, for about $2,700.

The Second National Bank of Cumberland sold to Claude Elwood Saville and Esther May Saville part of the Christopher Kelly farm for about $2,000.

Fireman Leaves For Navy Service

Another Liberty Ship Is Launched

BALTIMORE, June 15—(AP)—The launching of the S.S. "John A. Donald" marked today the completion of the one hundred fifty-third Liberty ship at Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyards.

Mrs. W. H. Hanna, of Elizabethtown, Ky., was the ship's sponsor. Mrs. Hanna is a niece of Dudley D. Donald of the War Shipping Administration.

The vessel, which was under construction only twenty-four days, was named for the Scotsman who was president of the Donald Steamship Company in 1917 when he was appointed to a four-year-term as member of the United States Shipping Board.

ROMANTIC COMBINATION

JUDY GARLAND and her newest leading man, Van Heflin, in a romantic moment from M-G-M's "Presenting Lily Mars," now playing at the Maryland theater. The film follows the rise of a young actress to stardom.

Theaters Today

Irene Hervey Appears In Comedy at Liberty

Irene Hervey, who has the reputation of being one of the busiest actresses, has added war work to her schedule. The brunette player, appearing currently with Joan Davis in Universal's "He's My Guy" at the Liberty theater, is a prime mover of the Brentwood Service theater in Santa Monica, California. Miss Hervey and Laraine Day were among those originally responsible for the enterprise.

Irene's job is the ballyhoo and publicity part of the theater, but she plays parts, too. The purpose of the institution is two-fold. Half of its seats for every performance are reserved for service men, thus giving them a chance to see interesting plays. Then, too, the theater gives real footlight experience to the man screen actors who live in or near Brentwood and who derive real training, as well as the satisfaction they find in entertaining soldiers.

Judy Garland, Heflin Excel in Romantic Film

Judy Garland goes glamour girl gets plenty of opposition in the person of exotic Marta Eggerth, and charms no less an austere personage than Van Heflin in M-G-M's "Presenting Lily Mars," her newest singing appearance, now playing at the Maryland theater. This is a romance of the modern theater, with haunting music embellishing an equally haunting romance. It tells what happens when a young singer sets out to attain stardom. Judy is the young singer. She tries to "crash" her way to the attention of a famous producer. Heflin, manages to make his prima donna, Miss Eggerth, plenty jealous, and amid comical complications and a touching love story the embryo star achieves success, musically and romantically.

are starred in "You Were Never Lovelier," opening today at the Garden theater. Astaire's dancing, smooth humor on the part of Adolph Menjou, and a fine score by Jerome Kern and Johnny Mercer, plus Rita Hayworth's beauty, combine to make an extremely entertaining picture.

The co-feature at the Garden is "Henry Aldrich, Editor," starring Jimmy Lydon, Charles Smith and John Littel. In fact, she is grateful to that shining piece of wood and gilt, because it first brought her attention of movie talent scouts. However, she is happy that there isn't even the trace of a baton in her most recent film, "Niagara Falls," starting tomorrow at Embassy theater.

Miss Woodworth was the high-stepping drum majorette of the University of Southern California when movies interfered with her college education. In her first three pictures she was hidden by that twirling piece of wood. Things were so bad that she didn't know which was the attraction—she or the baton.

Cardinals Boost Lead by Nipping Cincinnati Reds

Redbirds Win 3-1 as Walker Runs Hitting Streak to 22 Games

ST. LOUIS, June 15 (AP)—While Outfielder Harry Walker ran his hitting streak to twenty-two consecutive games, lanky Harry Gumbert elbowed a two-hitter today as the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Cincinnati Reds, 3 to 1, in the only contest of a scheduled double bill.

His performance and the Cards' ability to score thrice on the four blows a mighty effective Bucky Walters allowed sent the world champions into a three-game edge over the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Reds copied their lone couter in the second. Steve Mesner singled, after which Eddie Miller slipped out what looked like another. Del Garmus did a bit of fumbling, however, and Miller reached second as Mesner scored. Miller missed first base, so he didn't receive credit for a hit, nor Garmus for the error.

Despite Walters' wildness, which saw the usually reliable veteran walk eight, hit one and commit a balk, the Cards couldn't mark until the sixth—doing the job then on Marty Marion's double and two walks.

In the seventh Walker Cooper singled both Harry Walker and Garmus home. Walker had singled and Garmus walked.

Meantime, Gumbert fired his sweeping curve, holding the Reds with one hit until the ninth when Gee-Gee Walker beat out an infield roller.

Harry Walker's seventh-inning single sent him into a deadlock with Teammates George Kuroski and Stan Musial for the league's consecutive hitting mark for the current season.

The postponed second game of the doubleheader will be played Thursday, an open date for both clubs. The box:

PHILADELPHIA, June 15 (AP)—The Phillies traded right-handed pitcher Johnny Podgajny to the Pittsburgh Pirates tonight for another right-handed, Lloyd Arthur Dietz.

The swap, involving no cash, was made in the last hour before the midnight deadline for Major League trades. It was the latest in a series of rebuilding transactions whereby the new Phil regime of Owner Bill Cox and Manager Bucky Harris have put the club close to the first division.

"I hate to see Podgajny go," declared Manager Harris. "But I figure Dietz is a very good relief pitcher and that's what we need."

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—Notes, quotes and such:

The manner in which the lighter lads have grabbed the spotlight from the heavyweight prizefighters hereabouts was vividly demonstrated when the guest punchers were called into the Madison Square Garden ring for introductions before the Armstrong-Angott fight last Friday. In the past the ring would tremble and say as the Novas and Louises and Bases climbed most of them were in the service, and the Bobby Ruffins and Alie Stolzels and Jackie Wilsons take the little jack knife bows. There wasn't a one weighing more than 150 pounds in the ring Friday.

Dodger Pilot Leo Durocher was fingerprinted today, and not for the rogue gallery. It was a step toward his departure for the Caribbean area after the close of the current season. There he will help entertain the servicemen as a member of a U.S.O. unit. There is a possibility he may go across the pond eventually, which would be just what the doctor ordered for homesick troops. With the Brooklyn Dodgers the chief topic of sports conversation among servicemen the world over, what could be better than to have a Dodger in person visit them to give them the lowdown, and to have that Dodger in person old Leo the Lip himself?

Headline: "Cellar Yawns before Giants." Well, it might as well be unanimous. The fans have been doing it for some time.

Casual comment: Al Weill, manager of boxers, came bounding down the steps from the Madison Square Garden arena, in his ample wake a bright-eyed, nice-looking youngster. Weill held out his hand. "Hello, Whitney," he said. "I want you to meet my new boy, Lew Hanbury. Lew, say hello to Mr. Martin." Lew grinned amiably and shook hands.

"Hello Mr. Martin," he said obediently. "Come around some time. I've got a good story on this boy." Weill said, "We've got to move along now. Say good-bye to Mr. Martin, Lew."

"Good-bye, Mr. Martin," the boy said. Papa Weill's fighters are going to be gentlemen, or else.

Manager Ray Blades and Business Manager Charlie Hurth, of the New Orleans baseball club, each owns and flies his own airplane. They should be all set for any air travel baseball may adopt after the war. War or no war, the boys like their baseball. Approximately 300 youngsters attended the semi-annual tryouts conducted at Yankee stadium recently by the Yanks. Phil Rizuto was uncovered at such a camp. The National League attendance is running about eighty or eighty-five per cent of last year's figures. The Phils and Braves have helped take up a little of the slack. Bad early season weather in the West makes the figures from that sector misleading. The Cards turned in 122 dozen foul balls for the service pool last year. The Cubs were next with eighty-nine dozen. The Braves turned in only thirty-one dozen. Just couldn't get a foul off those Brave pitchers, apparently.

Giants Register Ninth-Inning Run To Shade Dodgers

Joe Orengo's Single Drives Home Winning Tally; Mel Ott Chased

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—Ending a game that limped through two hours and fifty-five minutes, Joe Orengo pushed a run home with a single to left in the ninth inning today to give the Giants a 6 to 6 decision over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Orengo's hit, coming with two out, broke a tie that had lasted from the sixth inning. The defeat-dropped the Bums three games behind the Cardinals in the National League race. Joe got his single off Kirby Higbe, the fourth Dodger elbow of the day, who was charged with his second loss of the year.

The Giants piled up a 5-1 lead in the first five innings, largely on homers by Buster Maynard, Mel Ott and Bill Jurges, but the Brooklyn came to life with a three run rally off Cliff Melton in the sixth. Ace Adams came in then and blanked the Dodgers the rest of the way for his fourth win of the season.

Giants Manager Mel Ott, ordinarily one of the more mild-mannered pilots, was chased out of the game by the Umpires at the end of the sixth after being struck out by Rube Melton. The box:

PHILADELPHIA, June 15 (AP)—Outfielders Ron Northey and Coaker Triplett slugged the Phillies to a two-way victory over the Boston Braves—6 to 4 and 2 to 1—before a Ladies Day crowd of 6,679 today in the first swing-shift doubleheader in the major leagues.

The wins pushed the Phillies into fifth place in the National League standings, a game and a half ahead of the Braves whom they displaced.

Triplett, acquired from St. Louis in the Danny Litwiler deal, wore a Phillies uniform on the Philadelphia diamond for the first time and got into the fans' good graces by clouting a homer and a three-bagger in the opener, accounting for four runs.

Northey blasted homers in his first trip to bat in both games and accounted for all scoring in the second. He doubled Danny Murtaugh home in the fifth inning of the second to give Al Gerheuser the best of a pitching duel with Dave Odom. Gerheuser struck out eight and the one run he yielded was a circuit blow by Eddie Joost in the fourth. The scores:

Rice Will Oppose Haegg Sunday

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—Chief Specialist J. Gregory Rice, the other half of the heralded Rice-Gunder Haegg foot-racing duel, hasn't sent in his entry for Sunday's National A.A.U. track and field championships and he confesses a notable lack of enthusiasm about his impending clash with the swift Swede. But the chances are that he will be on hand to give Haegg some real opposition.

Rice explained today that his failure to fill out an entry blank was due to the fact that he hasn't received official permission to compete from his superior officer at the United States Maritime School at Kings Point, Long Island. He seemed confident, however, that it was merely a matter of waiting until a change of orders comes through official channels.

As for his chances of beating Haegg, whose best time for 5,000 meters is his world record of 13:58.2 as compared to Rice's 14:33.4, that's where Greg just can't get steamed up. He's in fine physical condition, he says, although he hasn't had much time for training. But he adds: "I don't have the enthusiasm I should have."

"I've given what time I could to training, but that's only about fifty-five or sixty minutes a day when I'm out with the cadets," Rice said. It was pointed out that Haegg might not be in top physical condition either after a long voyage from Sweden on a tanker followed by only a short training period. "His lack of training might even things up," Rice admitted, "but there's still thirty-five seconds between us and that's a lot to make up in a race."

Yankees Wallop Senators 9 to 5

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The New York Yankees exploded for seven runs in the eighth inning to trounce Washington 9 to 5 before 15,000 customers tonight. The win boosted the Yankee first place lead to four games.

An average man's muscles weigh fifty-five pounds.

Rice, Scheduled To Oppose Haegg, Lacks Enthusiasm

American Runner Still Uncertain whether He'll Meet Swede

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—Chief Specialist J. Gregory Rice, the other half of the heralded Rice-Gunder Haegg foot-racing duel, hasn't sent in his entry for Sunday's National A.A.U. track and field championships and he confesses a notable lack of enthusiasm about his impending clash with the swift Swede. But the chances are that he will be on hand to give Haegg some real opposition.

Rice explained today that his failure to fill out an entry blank was due to the fact that he hasn't received official permission to compete from his superior officer at the United States Maritime School at Kings Point, Long Island. He seemed confident, however, that it was merely a matter of waiting until a change of orders comes through official channels.

As for his chances of beating Haegg, whose best time for 5,000 meters is his world record of 13:58.2 as compared to Rice's 14:33.4, that's where Greg just can't get steamed up. He's in fine physical condition, he says, although he hasn't had much time for training. But he adds: "I don't have the enthusiasm I should have."

"I've given what time I could to training, but that's only about fifty-five or sixty minutes a day when I'm out with the cadets," Rice said. It was pointed out that Haegg might not be in top physical condition either after a long voyage from Sweden on a tanker followed by only a short training period. "His lack of training might even things up," Rice admitted, "but there's still thirty-five seconds between us and that's a lot to make up in a race."

Once Wide-Open American League Tightens Play

Extra-Inning Contest Record of 80 Set in 1916 Threatened

By DAVE HOFF

CHICAGO, June 15 (AP)—When you take the family to an American League baseball game this season, bring a basket lunch. Chances are you'll be staying late and will need it.

For the junior circuit teams, who never used to sleep well unless they crushed the opposition that day by at least a half-dozen runs, this year are going in for marathon baseball at a record clip.

Up to today, 180 games had been played in the American League—and thirty-five of them had gone extra innings. At that rate the circuit easily will top its high of eighty overtime contests set in 1916.

Places where you can expect to get the most for your dollar-ten are Washington, Boston and Detroit. Six extra-inning games have been sprung on unsuspecting fans in each of those cities this season, and the Boston Red Sox fell into the habit so badly they wandered off and played six more marathon tilts on the road.

No teams have played the equivalent of two games on a day when they meant to hold only one, but the Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators came nearest to it on April 27 when they evaded fifteen scoreless innings before Philadelphia finally won out 2 to 1 in the sixteenth.

Cleveland and Detroit countered with a fifteen inning jamboree on May 1 and the Tigers' timing was thrown off so badly that on May 12, 13 and 14 they played three consecutive extra-innings games with the Athletics, of fifteen, thirteen and twelve innings, respectively.

But the real champs in the long-hours department are the St. Louis Browns. Luke Sewell's boys have indulged in three long games at home and ten on the road.

"Wild Bill" Niland Returns to Ring Wars

"Wild Bill" Niland, of Cumberland, has returned to the boxing ring, according to "The Barracks Review," published by the United States Disciplinary Barracks at Port Leavenworth, Kan.

In a recent boxing match between the U. S. D. B. and the Roerach Air Field teams, won by the latter by a 7 to 3 score, Niland scored an easy victory over Walter Cox. Both boys tipped the scales at 145 pounds.

In the second round, Niland threw a terrific right and then a left to Cox's jaw, slamming him back against the ropes. The Cumberlander rushed in and pummeled Cox with several rights and lefts before the fighters were parted.

Two Injured Stars

There are two headlines now on the waiting list that may be out of action longer than many think. Their names are Henry Armstrong and Count Fleet.

Armstrong is not only on the sidelines through a badly-cut lip, there are more than a few close observers who feel certain Armstrong's eyes are far from what they used to be in the way of keen, clear vision and that he is taking over a big risk on his future sight. Count Fleet's injured hoof may be far more serious than it first looked to be.

There is the chance that he may not be able to run until the fall season arrives, or may even fail to start again this year. These two entries, in fields that are far apart, are still crowd pleasers who will be missed in case the reports are true.

About Armstrong

"I wonder if you noticed Armstrong's eye action against Angott," a veteran observer writes.

"It was quite evident to me that on several occasions when he was all set and ready to punch he couldn't see his target. Or saw the target too late for a punch. He was moving in, shuffling in, apparently fighting by feel and instinct. I happen to know both eyes have been badly affected by old injuries. He may have suffered no late eye cuts, but the damage had been done before.

"In my opinion, he hasn't lost too much of his old speed or his punching power. He has simply lost sight of the target and has to throw too many punches from a blurred vision. This will be denied, of course, but I feel it is true."

The Count Fleet Case

Count Fleet, aiming in the general direction of Man o' War's great fame, has something more than a slight injury.

"In spite of his great record," one of the best of our trainers says, "Count Fleet has been bothered with this trouble for some time. Only fine handling by Don Cameron has kept him going. Several of us have been expecting something of this sort for quite a while. This is the main reason Johnny Longden made no attempt to ride him into records he could undoubtedly have broken."

Don Cameron isn't any too happy over Count Fleet's early future.

"I can't tell yet how long it will be before he is ready again," Don said. "The news map not be any too good."

With so many big stakes ahead, the Count's injury shows again the uncertainty surrounding all thoroughbreds.

His expected jaunts against Whirlaway, Alsab, Devil Diver and others may not come off.

Others Left

But there will be others left. Mike Jacobs still has Montgomery, Greco, Beau Jack, Pep, Wright, and Angott scattered around the landscape—with Greco, the Canadian, leading off against Montgomery next week.

There is no reason why Pep and Wright shouldn't be matched. Greco doesn't seem to have the experience needed for a Montgomery brawl, but there is still the chance that Beau Jack made Montgomery look better than he actually is.

At least Greco will be no soft push. The game Canadian can fight.

Hub and Fitz

The combined ages of Freddie Fitzsimmons and Carl Hubbell reached eighty-two years.

Their combined total of pitching seasons are now forty-three. But they still stand beneath the spotlight with four of the finest games of the year.

Hubbell has won his only two starts with the gasping Giants. Fitz allowed only one run in eighteen innings against Cardinals and Pirates.

These two great veterans have been close to the front in baseball's roll call, in spite of the years that have passed since the first World War closed out.

Few realize, in addition to their pitching, what they have meant on the side to the clubs for which happened to work. Ask Mel Ott or Leo Durocher.

FOR THE GAME'S SAKE

By LAWRENCE PERRY

NEW YORK, June 15.—Decision of the state racing commission as to the locale of the Saratoga meeting in August is expected this week, probably Friday. Belmont Park is expected to win, with Aqueduct figuring poorly in the odds. Jamaica is automatically out of the running because it has no steeplechase course.

The dope heavily favors Belmont. Some 1,600 thoroughbreds are training there as against one or two hundred at Aqueduct where the track is regarded as inadequate to contain fields of fifteen to twenty horses such as are found on the Saratoga program. Thus in smaller and yet sufficiently large degree, one of the counts against holding the meeting update applies to Aqueduct—the gas and the problem affecting the transportation of horses to the scene.

So, without the tons of petitions and letters which have been received by the racing commission favoring Belmont Park, it is regarded as altogether likely that Herbert Bayard Swope and his fellow racing commissioners would incline to that course.

Since we have no access to Chairman Swope's mail we are unable to say whether or not many—or any—letters were received from footsore fans who daily participated in the bunion derby from the Queens Village railway station to Belmont. But we do suspect—believed race-goers feel are still subject to reminiscent aches and twinges—that a very great bulk of the mail did not come from this source. Irrespective of the many advantages possessed by the larger park it has to yield to Aqueduct in one respect—in proximity to the Long Island Railroad.

However, it is pretty certain that the pedal extremities of turf addicts will be of very minor consideration in the deliberations of the racing commission.

As to Saratoga, sleeping placidly eleven months in the year, it will now enjoy a soporific twelve months. August will be the same as any summer month, a resort for the most part of elderly ladies and gentlemen on vacation. They will not miss the animation and color and thrill, all the spectacular circumstance of the normal Saratoga August. But hotel keepers, business men and tradesmen will. Only twice since racing began there in 1864 has August passed without horse racing—in 1911 and 1912 when the aversion of the then governor, Charles Evans Hughes, to horse racing bulwarked by legislative ban against betting.

But that was long ago, and the current decision to transfer Saratoga racing to one of the metropolitan tracks came like a thunderclap to the ancient Spa. The chamber of commerce rared up and the business community rose with it. The Saratoga Association which has but one upstate resident in its directory, Seth Morton, of Albany, was, on the contrary, rather placid about the move.

So eventually were all Saratogans when they were advised as to the impossibility of transporting horses to the resort, difficulty of feeding the influx of non-residents and other factors adverse to handling horses and humans.

Saratoga must wait until war is over and meanwhile have a nice, long, unbroken sleep—Consolidated News Features.

Jenifer Appointed To Racing Commission

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 15.—(AP)—

H. Courtney Jenifer, of Baltimore county, was appointed to the state racing commission late today by Governor O'Connor, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Chester F. Hockley, also of Baltimore county.

Hockley resigned, O'Connor explained, because of the additional responsibilities placed upon large war industries, Davison Chemical Corp. "In Mr. Jenifer, there will replace Mr. Hockley, a man of integrity, wide experience, and proven ability," the governor said.

season in the seventh with one out, scoring three runs. After Roy Parlee singled and Skeeter Newsome doubled, Cronin lifted one of Luman Harris's pitches against the left center screen.

Anton Karl hurled the last two frames for Boston, and Everett Fagans worked the final inning for the A's.

The Athletics' pitcher, Jesse Flores, won his eighth game of the season, but his first against the Red Sox, by keeping his well scattered in the second game.

Philadelphia decided it in the fourth after two were gone. Jim Tyack hit a two-bagger and Irv Hall, Hal Wagner and Flores singled in order. With a hit batter and a base on balls, the A's gathered three runs. The scores:

Pirates Tie Reds For Third Place

Buccaneers Rally in Sixth Inning To Defeat Cubs, 4 to 2

PITTSBURGH, June 15. (AP)—A four-run rally in the sixth today pulled the Pittsburgh Pirates from behind, giving them a 4-2 victory over Chicago and a tie with Cincinnati for third-place in the National League.

The Buccaneers had gone twenty-seven innings without scoring a run against southpaw pitching when Frankie Gustine and Tommy O'Brien opened the sixth with doubles off Ray Prim. Before the frame was over Prim had been relieved by Henry Wyse and the game had been interrupted thirty-three minutes by weather conditions.

Lou Novikoff was the "goat" of the contest. He led off for Chicago in the second with a single, but failed to touch second and was called out when Harry Lowrey drove a hard smash into right field. The play robbed Lowrey of a hit. A pass to Len Merullo, Prim's single and Ed Stanky's double then counted the visitors' runs.

It was Rip Sewell's fourth straight triumph over Chicago and his seventh of the season against two setbacks. Flashy fielding, particularly by Gustine, Huck Geary and Edie Fletcher, helped him greatly.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPE

Bleaching Cauliflower Heads in Victory Garden

Cauliflower requires a little more than the ordinary care given to many vegetables in the Victory garden. It belongs to the cabbage family and is subject to the same diseases and enemy insects. Cabbage worms and aphids are destructive on cauliflower.

Cauliflower is more exacting in its requirements than cabbage and to obtain healthy, well developed heads it must be kept growing continuously. This means that the plants must be fed an abundance of easily absorbed plant food (if the soil is not rich) plus an ample supply of water, especially during dry spells. Cultivation is also essential.

Cauliflower must be protected from the sun if solid, tender white head are to form. For this reason it is necessary to blanch cauliflower by excluding all light possible when the flower heads are about three or four inches in diameter.

The accompanying Garden-Graph illustrates the method of blanching cauliflower by tying the large outer leaves together over the young "curds" or heads with raffia. The loosely and carefully so the "curds" are not bruised or broken, for the heads must continue to grow.

Care should be exercised in cultivating around cauliflower plants since the foliage is quite brittle and will break easily.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

CONSIDER THEIR VIEW
NORMAL reactions of your opponents, in normal situations, will be about the same as yours would be. Seldom will it pay you to attempt a play which would not be likely to work if they tried it against you under similar circumstances. Consider their probable point of view before attempting something which depends upon their making a particular mistake. If you decide they probably won't fall for the bait, then try to see if you can't figure out some more likely way to make your contract.

Following the diamond 5 lead, South saw that he had to lose a trick in trumps and possibly three in clubs. He decided to try to get rid of one of his clubs before the defenders had the lead. Taking the first trick with the diamond A, discarding a club from dummy, he laid down the spade A, overtook the Q with the K and led the J. That card would have made a club discard possible at once if the outstanding spades had been divided 3-3. But East ruffed with the heart 4, so South over-ruffed with the 6.

Now the diamond 10 was ruffed with the heart 5 and the spade 10

Mrs. Fisher Will Testify Today In Theater Suit

Contract Phraseology Is Debated as Hearing Enters Third Day

Mrs. Grace M. Fisher, co-defendant with the Cumberland Theater Company, will take the witness stand this morning as the suit for enforcement of an alleged contract to lease the Maryland and Embassy theaters to William and Henry Sussman, New York theater operators, enters its third day before Chief Judge D. Lindsey Sloan in circuit court here.

Testimony and argument yesterday dealt primarily with the interpretation to be given to one phrase in the contract, upon which, according to the court, its enforceability rests. The phrase in question described the leases for the theaters as being "in accordance with usual terms and conditions of leases of theater property."

"Without that phrase it is a good and enforceable contract," Judge Sloan declared at one point of objection in the argument yesterday, and the question is whether that phrase "will destroy the rest of it," he added.

Phraseology Is Subject of Debate

In debate on that phraseology, William C. Walsh, counsel for the Sussmans, contended that his clients had entered into the agreement with the understanding that the lease would be based on an existing lease for the Maryland theater assigned to Mrs. Fisher by Lewis Goodman.

Charles G. Page, attorney for the defendants, argued that the wording was obscure and as such was not binding on either of the parties. Concerning the part the Goodman lease played in the contested agreement, P. Brooke Whiting, counsel for Mrs. Fisher at the time the contract was drawn, and Edgar A. Dashiell, secretary of the Cumberland Theater Company, testified that they had no knowledge of the lease until this suit was entered.

Verbalism Cites Binding Elements

Judge Joseph Verbalism, of the New Jersey bar, declared in a statement in behalf of the Sussmans, that the agreement contains all the elements of a binding contract. He pointed out that the parties to the contract are named, the properties involved are described and the terms of the lease are outlined. These factors are enough to dispel the alleged obscurity in the wording, he added.

Henry Sussman returned to the witness stand yesterday morning and gave further testimony that he had never considered the agreement as tentative and considered himself bound by its terms. William Sussman followed his brother on the stand and corroborated evidence given by the latter and Julius Krumbold, New York broker who had been instrumental in bringing the parties together. He said that he was ready to go through with the agreement.

All of the witnesses testified that the Goodman lease had not been mentioned in the conferences on the afternoon the contract was drawn.

As counsel for both sides objected to much of the testimony presented by their opponents, arguments on legal points took up much of yesterday's session. There has been no indication as to when the hearing will be concluded.

Besides the attorneys already named, C. William Gilchrist represents the plaintiffs and J. Calvin Carney is counsel for the defendants.

Air Raid Wardens Will Get Helmets

Zone No. 1 Presentation Ceremonies Scheduled Tomorrow

Steel helmets will be presented to 134 qualified air raid wardens of Zone No. 1 tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in the West Side school, according to announcement last evening by Herman L. Myers, assistant air raid warden of Allegheny county.

The helmets are the first of a shipment of 1,620 to be distributed to a local civilian defense unit. Only bona fide wardens who have completed twenty hours of first aid, five hours of gas and five hours of gas training will be eligible to receive the headgear.

Dr. Robert W. Work, civilian defense director of Allegheny county, and Myers will be present for the ceremonies.

John H. Mosner is zone chief of the West Side wardens. Matthew Robb and Charles L. Herath are his assistants.

Myers said that helmets will be distributed to air raid wardens of other city zones next week. Other equipment also will be assigned to the proper units in the near future.

Melvin Bowers Seeks Absolute Divorce

Melvin Bowers, 308 Howard place, filed a bill of complaint against Mary R. Bowers in circuit court yesterday.

They were married August 8, 1942 and lived together until March 27 of this year. No children were born of the marriage. The bill states that the plaintiff asks a decree of absolute divorce. Edward J. Ryan is attorney for the plaintiff.

Ringing Telephone Saves Two Lives

Refrigerator Fumes Partially Overcome Mr. and Mrs. David Allen

A ringing telephone was given credit last night for saving the lives of Mr. and Mrs. David Allen, 416 Goethe street, after escaping fumes from their electric refrigerator filled their home.

Mrs. Allen said she and her husband awoke at 8:30 a. m. yesterday to the ringing of the telephone and found their home filled with the fumes. She said the fumes escaped after the refrigerator exploded during the night, and added that both she and her husband might have been killed if the telephone had not rung when it did.

Both she and her husband, partially overcome, fled from the house after they awoke, Mrs. Allen said, and recovered without suffering any ill effects.

Damage from the explosion was minor, Mrs. Allen said, although everything in the refrigerator was ruined.

INSTITUTIONS MAY SUBMIT APPLICATIONS FOR RATIONS NOW

Institutions may submit their ration applications for July and August to the local rationing board until July 5 and obtain the full allotment, Karl Radcliffe, chief clerk, announced yesterday.

Restaurants, hotels, cafeterias and county institutions receive their ration allotments on a two-month basis and applications were being accepted yesterday for the next period.

Institutions which submit their applications after July 5 cannot obtain the full allotment and the amounts applied for are reduced in proportion to the date of the application, Radcliffe explained.

Persons who purchased used motor vehicles are urged to obtain the A ration book issued to the original owner of the vehicle, Radcliffe said. The A card is the basic ration card and is assigned to the vehicle.

If the person purchasing a used car will obtain the A book from the owner and bring it to the ration board a replacement book will be issued.

Dr. Winthrop Phelps, of Baltimore, will conduct a cerebral palsy clinic July 8, 9 and 10 at the headquarters of the Allegheny County League for Crippled Children, city hall plaza, it was announced yesterday by Miss Vivian Lambert, executive secretary.

Appointments have been made for the examination of seventy children.

Office hours for the clinic will be 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., on Thursday and Friday and 9 a. m. to noon on Saturday.

Dr. Phelps holds two clinics here annually, the first in July and the second in December.

Stella Fishel Granted Writ of Habeas Corpus

In answer to her petition in circuit court yesterday, Associate Judge William A. Huster granted a writ of habeas corpus and a writ of certiorari to Stella Fishel, who has been confined in the Maryland House of Correction.

The petition charged that she was being illegally retained in the house of correction because the magistrate of the juvenile court had passed sentence without evidence or jurisdiction in the premises.

The writ of habeas corpus was issued to Dr. J. Leroy Wright, warden of the house of correction, and the writ of certiorari directed Judge Menefee of the juvenile court to produce all records and papers pertaining to the case for a hearing at 10:30 a. m. on June 23.

Charles Watson is attorney for the petitioner.

An appeal to citizens for funds to send members of the Cumberland Police Boys Club to the "Y" camp near Springfield, W. Va., for a week's vacation in August, was issued yesterday by Mrs. Nat Guggenheimer, treasurer of the club.

Efforts will be made to send between sixty and seventy boys to camp provided sufficient contributions are received from local citizens.

The cost of transportation, lodging and meals at the camp for one week is approximately $9 an individual.

Married Women Urged To Engage In Employment

Col. H. S. Stanwood Says Work Will Not Affect Draft Status of Husbands

Women who refuse to engage in any sort of employment because they believe it will affect selective service status of their husbands are hindering the war effort because of this entirely mistaken impression, Col. H. S. Stanwood, Selective Service director for Maryland, yesterday stated in conjunction with the War Manpower Commission's announcement that women are being sought for full-time or part-time work in the canneries of the state this summer.

Col. Stanwood emphasized his statement with the assertion that "a man whose wife is employed will not be drafted one bit quicker than a man whose wife is not employed, all other things being equal."

In co-operation with the WMC campaign to recruit women workers for the canneries and for essential industry, Col. Stanwood drew this conclusion from the WMC report that some women believe they can delay their husband's induction into the armed forces if they do not go to work, and stated that financial dependency of a wife is no longer considered a basis for deferment.

A working wife and a non-working wife are considered the same as far as draft classification of their husbands is concerned.

The only men entitled to deferment because of dependency, it was explained, are those with children conceived before Pearl Harbor or men whose induction would cause "great and unusual hardship" on their dependents. "Unusual hardship" is interpreted as applying equally to women who are able to work but do not get jobs and to women who work.

Medical Board Meets

Hearings were conducted yesterday by the medical board of the Maryland State Industrial Accident Commission in the council chamber of the city hall.

Rider Is Thrown From Motorcycle

Waller Minnick Suffers Possible Leg Fracture in Valley Road Accident

Thrown from the motorcycle he was riding on Valley road, Walter S. Minnick, 22, Sioux City, Ia., army base was admitted to Allegheny hospital at 5 p. m. yesterday for treatment of a possible fracture of his left leg.

State Trooper Graydon S. Dunlap, who investigated, said Minnick told him the motorcycle skidded on the highway, throwing him to the road.

Earl Poorbaugh, Locust Grove, brought Minnick, son of Mrs. Sarah Minnick, Route 3, Valley road, to the hospital.

Janet Crossland, 10, daughter of Mrs. Ursula Crossland, 303 Decatur street, had a fishing hook removed from the tip of the third finger of her right hand at 12:45 p. m. yesterday in Allegheny hospital. The fishing hook entered the girl's finger, attaches said, while she was swimming near Rawlings.

Thomas Poorbaugh, 60, 613 Elm street, employed by the Community Baking Company, was treated in Memorial hospital at 5:30 p. m. yesterday for lacerations of his head, suffered when he bumped against a steel girder while sweeping.

1943 Community Chest Analysis Is Given at Testimonial Dinner

From the beginning of time the question of eating has been quite a problem, but never so much of a problem as it is right now. Even if you've got foidin' money in your pocket you may still have trouble eating regularly or at least pleasantly.

Now you'll hear more complaints from those who put their feet under their own dining room table or even the kitchen table than you'll hear from the homeless men who eat in the restaurants, but that's because there are more of them.

It's the cause of the homeless men chatter is taking up today—being one of them, the writer ought to know. Yes, he has a ration book, but what the heck? You can't cook a steak without a place to cook it even if you could buy a steak, can you?

And on a visit to the market looking for some meat in the hope Jack over at the M. & A. would get big-hearted and cook it for him, Chatter didn't have any luck. The butcher, it seems, had been reading about Clare Booth Luce's remarks about globalism and tried to be funny. "We have no globalism," the man said. Funny, huh?

Then Farmer Northcraft brought in a nice trout he walked out and caught on account of having no mind to use his car and get yanked up for pleasure driving. It was taken over to Mike's and cooked. That was two weeks ago and there has been little to eat since.

Then it was figured that maybe a person could drive out and get a fish seeing as how Mister Tawes went to Florida on a business trip and the First Lady of our state took a jaunt for her health. Chatter asked the local OPA how about it and the man said "don't be silly, you ain't Tawes or the First Lady. Frank Beamer would have you in the blink before you got your line wet."

So Chatter kept looking for a restaurant where the girl wouldn't say "we ain't got none of that stuff on the menu any more." But the hours of searching for food in the restaurant are getting shorter every day. The restaurants, it seems, are all sold out early in the evening and close up shop. Night workers can go hungry and they do.

But nevertheless there's no need to squawk. The boys in the service are eating and eating good. What else matters?

42 Appointments Made for Legion Hearing Clinic

Dr. Breitstein To Examine Children at League Headquarters Today

Forty-two appointments have been made for the clinic for prevention of deafness which will be conducted by Dr. M. L. Breitstein, of Baltimore, today in the headquarters of the Allegheny County League for Crippled Children, city hall plaza.

The clinic is a project of the child welfare program of the Maryland department of the American Legion, of which Miss Anne M. Sloan, of Lonaconing, is chairman.

The most serious cases of deafness among children are examined and referred to local physicians. Both the Allegheny County Board of Education and the nurses of the Allegheny County Health Department co-operate in the program.

A sizeable sum is spent each year by the American Legion in sponsoring hearing clinics throughout the state and the examination by appointment only is free of charge. Three clinics are held annually in Allegheny, Washington, Anne Arundel, Montgomery, Prince George and Baltimore counties and Baltimore city. The first clinic of the year in Cumberland was held February 24.

Examination of cases is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock this morning.

C of C Planning Committee Will Meet Thursday

A dinner meeting of the Post War Planning committee of the chamber of commerce will be held at 6 p. m. Thursday in Central Y.M.C.A. with E. S. Burke, chairman of the committee, in charge of the program.

Members of the committee will discuss the post war situation as they see it affecting their businesses. They are Mayor Thomas F. Conlon; Edward R. Allan, of the Celanese plant; Roy W. Eves, of the B. and O.; Henry W. Price, of the Potomac Edison Company; Thomas Gilchrist, of the Wilson Hardware Company; and Burke, of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Resolutions Are Presented Roy C. Lottig and Mrs. Emma Everstine

An analysis of Cumberland's 1943 Community Chest campaign as compared with a review of the 1942 drive was given at last night's testimonial dinner in honor of Roy C. Lottig, chairman of the recent campaign, and Mrs. Emma Everstine, chairman of the Woman's division. The dinner was held in the club rooms of Central Y.M.C.A.

The analysis showed that contributions of $100 and over in this year's drive, while only 1.1 per cent of the 7,629 subscribers, accounted for $30,450 or 51.2 per cent of the $59,061 raised.

Last year contributions in the same category accounted for $29,542 or 54.5 per cent of the $54,065 total. The number of contributors in that classification was 14 per cent of the 5,887 subscribers.

Majority of Total
All contributions of $25 and over in this year's drive accounted for 64.6 per cent or $38,333 raised, while in 1942 contributions in that classification accounted for 68.5 per cent or $37,135 of the total.

A decided increase in the number of contributions of less than $5 was noted in this year's drive and Harold W. Smith, president of the chest, who presided at the meeting, intimated that this upturn probably was responsible for the success of the campaign.

Contributions of less than $5 were made this year by 5,888 persons or 77.1 per cent of the total. These contributors gave $9,947 or seventeen per cent of the total collected.

In 1942, contributions under $5 were made by 4,280 persons or 72.7 per cent of the number of subscribers. They contributed $6,978 or 12.9 per cent of the total.

Totals Are Compared

Totals showed that 7,629 persons contributed $59,061 in the 1943 drive while 5,887 persons gave $54,065 in the 1942 campaign.

Resolutions of appreciation, signed by the executive committee, were presented to Lottig and Mrs. Everstine by Smith. The recipients responded and thanked other campaign workers for their assistance.

Recognition was given Raymond C. Lalor, Boy Scout executive of Potomac Council and veteran campaign worker, and Mrs. Lalor. They will leave Cumberland the latter part of this month for Johnson City, Tenn., where Lalor will assume similar Boy Scout duties to those he had here.

15 Scout Troops Will Send Patrols To Camporee Here

Boys Will Camp Overnight Saturday; Games Program Scheduled Sunday

Boy Scouts of troops in Frostburg and Cumberland will gather at Constitution park Saturday at 3 p. m. for the two-day camporee of Cumberland district, according to Harry S. Thayer, district scout commissioner in charge of arrangements.

Thayer expects approximately 150 boys of fifteen troops to participate in the competitive rally which begins Saturday and ends Sunday at 4 p. m. Some of the troops will enter more than one patrol and each patrol will comprise from five to eight boys.

The opening day's program will include supper at 5 p. m. and campfire and stunts at 9 p. m. After breakfast on Sunday at 6:30 a. m., the groups will break up to attend church services and at noon the scouts will cook their own dinner. A program of scout games is scheduled for 2 p. m., and two hours later the troops will break camp.

Will Camp Overnight
A camporee is an exposition of patrol camping and troops may enter as many patrols as are prepared to be considered for awards, a patrol must have at least five members and not over eight. Scouts participating in the Camporee must be registered and must not have reached their eighteenth birthday.

The camporee will cover a minimum period of twenty-four hours and close tab will be kept on the various activities of the patrols from the time they check in until the program is over.

Each scout in every patrol that does exceptionally good camping will receive a medalion to wear. Other scouts who do satisfactory camping will receive a standard campaign badge to wear on the right pocket of his shirt.

Each patrol that does good camping will receive a red ribbon while a blue ribbon will be awarded patrols whose general performance in all departments is considered excellent by the judges.

Council Affairs Cancelled

Thayer said that for the past four years the Potomac Council camporee has been held on the Smith farm near Rawlings but due to travel restrictions it was considered best this year to hold it by districts and sites selected so the majority of scouts could hike to them.

Frostburg was invited to participate in the Cumberland district camporee when troops of that district were unable to obtain the services of necessary leadership to stage a camporee of their own.

Congressmen Ask Potomac River Flood Control Plan

Engineers Are Now Surveying Basin; May Report in November

Congressional representatives from both Maryland and West Virginia are demanding that the Potomac River basin be included in any nationwide postwar flood control program during hearings of the House Flood Control Committee in Washington.

Rep. J. Glenn Beall, of Maryland, and Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, both members of the committee, testified at a public hearing Friday and urged that one of the first moves in the Potomac region after the war be the completion of the Savage river dam project, now halted because of the war.

Study Several Possibilities

The representatives disclosed that engineers of the War department are surveying the Potomac river area and said they have studied the possibilities of dikes, walls and diversion canals all along the river and its tributary rivers.

The report of the engineers on likely projects as well as a report on the flood of last October, which caused extensive damage above Washington, will be ready about Nov. 15 and will probably be sent to Congress, Beall and Randolph said.

Randolph estimated that the Savage river dam was more than fifty per cent completed before the war put a halt to the work, but Beall, in his testimony estimated that the amount of work done might be as high as eighty per cent. Both men agreed that when finished the dam would be of major importance in the river development.

Many Towns Affected
In a letter to the committee the two members pointed out that there are nineteen towns in Maryland and twelve in West Virginia besides Washington, D. C., that are affected by the Potomac river. They said ordinance facilities are among the industrial plants flanking the river in and around Cumberland and Keyser, W. Va.

The Flood committees' hearings were called with the idea of working out a catalogue of flood control projects for the postwar period.

Boy Is Badly Hurt; Fell from Bridge

John Gilford, Ridgeley, Plunges Sixty Feet from Railroad Structure

Falling sixty feet from the Baltimore and Ohio railroad bridge near Bloomington late Monday night, John Gilford, 13, son of Arthur Gilford, Ridgeley, W. Va., was admitted to Memorial hospital at 12:50 a. m. yesterday. He remained in a critical condition last night.

The boy fell from the structure about 11 p. m. Monday and was brought to the hospital by his brother-in-law, Hughie Davis, who heard his calls for help.

Hospital attaches said the boy was unconscious when he was admitted to the hospital early yesterday morning but added that he has since regained his senses.

Although his condition remains critical, attaches said Gilford is slightly improved. He is being treated for a puncture wound of the right side of his upper abdomen, fractured left wrist, brush burns of his face, arms and back and possible internal injuries.

Rotarians See Film On South America

Rotarians were taken on an interesting journey through South America by means of a sound film in technicolor yesterday at their weekly luncheon at the Central Y. M. C. A.

The film was prepared under the direction of the Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs as a part of the Good Neighbor policy of the United States government.

Birthday honors were accorded Alan P. Eggleston, whose anniversary falls on Friday.

Auto Use Stamp Sales Lag Here

Only 300 Sold--Postmaster Urges Motorists To Avoid Late Rush

Only 300 of the auto use stamps which went on sale at the local post office June 10 had been sold at the close of business yesterday and James C. Shriver, postmaster, advised motorists to purchase the stickers at once to avoid a last minute rush.

The stamps, which cost $5, must be displayed on the windshields of vehicles which are operated after June 30, and are valid from July 1, 1943 to June 30, 1944. The new series is lemon colored and bears serial numbers for identification.

Post office officials predict that the 10,000 auto use stamps on hand here will satisfy the local demand. 12,000 of the stickers were sold here in February, 1942.

Post office employees explained that the stamps were "use" stamps and that motorists are not required to purchase the stamps for cars that are kept in storage. All unused stamps are returned at the end of each month and a new series is sold by the local office. Users may purchase the stamps at any time and pay according to the month of issue.

BOARDS WILL RELEASE ONLY NAMES OF MEN WHO ARE ACCEPTED

Local draft board officials yesterday disagreed with a West Virginia Selective Service ruling that the names of all inductees called might be given to newspapers and asserted that no change has been made in the ruling that only the names of men accepted for service might be released.

The Charleston announcement read:

"State selective service headquarters said today a change in rules permitted newspapers to publish the entire list of men called for induction, but after they go to the induction center only the names of those accepted may be printed."

R. Emmett Fahey, chief clerk of Local Board No. 2, quoted a national order which said that the local board may prepare a list of registrants delivered for induction, a list of accepted and inducted registrants, and may post or furnish the list to news services, newspapers and radio stations.

The order specifically states, Fahey said, that:

"The list of accepted and inducted registrants should not be prepared until delivery lists have been returned from induction centers and under no circumstances should the lists include registrants rejected at the induction station."

Court Permits Millers To Retain Custody Of Their Four Children

After a hearing in circuit court yesterday in which they were charged with neglect and failure to provide proper care, Dorothy and Orville Miller were permitted by Associate Judge William A. Huster to retain custody of their four minor children.

The bill of complaint had been entered June 3 by Mrs. Miller's sister, Thelma Jones, who charged that the children were being neglected, that their home was not fit to live in and that the mother spent government allotments from her husband's salary for riotous living.

Testimony was presented by a large number of witnesses for each side, and the court decided that the Millers maintain proper care in the future, as their testimony indicated they could, and cause no further complaint to be registered against them, they could retain guardianship of their children.
